

A Cultural Perspective to the Cycle of Violent Conflicts in the Niger Delta Region of Nigeria.

Jackson T.C.B Jack, PhD Federal University Otuoke, Nigeria

Abstract

The study examined how conflicts in the guise of the 'Niger Delta struggle' created new cultural norms manifest in material and non-material cultural production which incentivizes violent behaviour.

Objective of the Study

The objective is to demonstrate how the creation of a culture of violence sustains the cycle of violent conflicts in the Niger Delta.

Materials and Methods

The study was anchored on a qualitative research approach with key informant interviews (KII), observations and analysis of material and non-material cultural production such as popular music, artefacts, and societal reward systems as data sources which were thematically analysed.

Findings

The study revealed that the collective approval of militancy resulted in emergence of new cultural norms that are permissive to violent behaviour in the Niger Delta. The glorification and veneration of the persona of the 'militant' in freedom fighter heroism reinforces the permissive culture of violence which is internalized through cultural production such as:

a. Material Artefacts

b. Popular Music
