A mixed company of Das Reich tanks advances against the Russians. The two vehicles in the center background are late model PzKpfw IIIs, the rest being PzKpfw IV ausf Gs. All the Gs have turret schurzen, the nearest one is unusual in having side skirts as well. [Scott Van Ness]

the bulk of its forces pulled back to France in early February 1944. A regiment-sized battle group [K-Gr Lamerding] remained behind with LAH to continue the fight. The next round opened at Cherkassy. Having been halted to the North at Berdichev and to the South at Kirovograd (where Totenkopf had been engaged in bloody fighting alongside Grossdeutschland), the enemy came through the middle. Having been unable to encircle the German 8. and 1. Panzer-Armee, the Russians settled for the two corps that were still holding the Dnieper line between Kanev and Cherkassy. After some of the fiercest fighting yet seen, including a charge by three Russian Cavalry Divisions, the enemy broke through on 1 February to the North and South of the German salient, trapping six divisions, including Wiking, in a large pocket around Korsun.

The story of the previous year's fighting in the East had been one of just such encirclements and their attempted relief. Since the disaster at Stalingrad, the Germans had been successful each time in relieving surrounded troops and expected to be so again. On the basis of this expectation, the six divisions were told to hold their ground and await developments. But this was the largest such encirclement since Stalingrad and the Russians were determined that the same fate should befall these men as befell 6. Armee just a year before. The Germans brought up a relief force of four Panzer Divisions led by 1. Panzer-Division and LAH. It was to be strength against strength. Arriving in the area of Buzhanka on 3 February, LAH was launched immediately at the enemy-held neck of land separating the relief force from the encircled troops, specifically at the village of Shenderovka. In part because of gross miscalculation on the part of the German High Command (OKH), which caused the main attack to be misdirected for several days, and in part because four tired Panzer Divisions were simply not strong enough to break a line held in depth by two Tank and one Guards Tank Army, the attack failed. After twelve days of bitter Winter fighting the relief forces had penetrated no more than halfway through the 20 miles that separated them from the encircled divisions.

After only four days OKH had realized that, at best, any relief would require some assistance from the two trapped corps. On 7 February, Wiking was ordered from its position on the Eastern edge of the pocket to the Western, facing Shenderovka. On the evening of 11 November, the Germania regiment led the attack in the capture of that village. It then had to be held for five days against Russian counterattacks. When

SS Armor Robert Cecil Stern,1978 Stalingrad Thomas Broderick,2015-06-02 It is the summer of 1942 With the setbacks of the previous winter behind them a reinvigorated German army is poised along a front stretching 2 100 kilometers ready to strike the final blow to the Soviet Union A refitted and up armored panzer strike force with newer more powerful 75 mm main guns and new leadership awaits along the Ukraine for the opening phase of Operation Blau Blue Although not as numerous as the forces that stormed their way into Russia one year before these experienced troops are determined as ever to put an end to a conflict that has gone on too long Even the youngest of privates understands that if the war in the east is to be won it must be concluded with this campaign Hitlers overambitious goal was to sweep the Soviet army off the steppes along the giant bend in the River Don straight through to the River Volga cutting off Stalins main oil supply artery to his northern forces Just as he did the previous year Hitler suddenly alters his attack plans as Operation Blau unfolds He strips much of the needed tank and motorized forces from the Sixth Army and diverts them down into the Caucasus region to seize the critical oil production facilities in places such as Maikop Grozny and Baku With the defeat of Russia almost a certainty combined with his most recent successes in North Africa Hitler assured himself the swift collapse of the Allied armies and capitulation of the West was not long in coming At long last final victory was within his grasp Typhoon over Moscow Thomas Broderick,2005-03-03 During the predawn hours of June 22 1941 over 3 5 million German troops and thousands of tanks planes and armored vehicles slammed into the Soviet Unions Western Frontier Hitlers Operation Barbarossa had begun and stretched on a front spanning nearly 2 000 kilometers from north to south The opening weeks of the Great Patriotic War as it is known in Russia were an unmitigated disaster for the Red Army Brave soldiers like Lieutenant Alexander Semenov and General Nikolai Petrenko struggled heroically to shore up their countrys defenses and halt Germanys three pronged advance the center of which was aimed right at the very heart and capital of their beloved motherland Moscow With the entire civilian population mobilized thousands of men women and children toiled without rest digging fortifications and deep anti tank trenches out of the rich black soil of Mother Russia Industrial workers from across the country labored to crate every piece of equipment not already in German hands and shipped them east to the Urals out of harms way Thousands of vital war industries large and small sprung up from the frozen earth and within weeks were producing the vital tools needed to bring the fight to the Fascists invaders As far as the German Army was concerned the drive east into the depths of Russia was little different from any of her previous conquests However true professional soldiers the likes of Colonel Wilhelm Eichorn knew better Russia was a vast country with an unforgiving climate If the campaign to destroy the Soviet field army and capture Moscow was not completed before the onset of the next brutal Russian winter disaster was certain The annals of history were littered with the wreckage of armies that learned getting into Russia was easy getting out was not As fall neared and the German summer successes began to fade Hitler mustered his forces for one
