Hong Kong Cinema Law Kar, Frank Bren, 2004-09-17 Starting with the first Western shadow plays shown in the late 1890s motion pictures have played a significant role in China's cultural existence for more than a century Initially centered in Shanghai Chinese cinema boomed in Hong Kong in the 1930s aided by the advent of talkies and the influx of talent and investment from mainland China Southeast Asia and America From the late 1940s the territory supplanted Shanghai as the Hollywood of China In Hong Kong Cinema A Cross Cultural View authors Law Kar and Frank Bren follow the story from Hong Kong's early silent Chuang Tsi Tests His Wife through the martial arts craze of the 1970s to the medium's continued appeal to contemporary international audiences Rather than provide a sweeping history the authors focus on the impact of individual personalities particularly local filmmakers and movie stars They also consider Eastern and Western influences and examine major developments including the changing role of women By profiling key figures and events of the 20th century this overview is the perfect introduction for anyone interested in Hong Kong's contribution to world cinema Illustrated with photos

Now a Major Motion Picture Christine Geraghty, 2007-10-02 Going beyond the process of adaptation Geraghty is more interested in the films themselves and how they draw on our sense of recall While a film reflects its literary source it also invites comparisons to our memories and associations with other versions of the original For example a viewer may watch the 2005 big screen production of Pride and Prejudice and remember Austen's novel as well as the BBC's 1995 television movie Adaptations also rely on the conventions of genre editing acting and sound to engage our recall elements that many movie critics tend to forget when focusing solely on faithfulness to the written word

Envisioning Asia Jeanette Roan, 2010-05-07 Whereas some other scholars read selected films mainly to illustrate political arguments Roan never loses sight of the particularities of film as a distinctive cultural form and practice Her drive to see cinema as a mechanism of American orientalism results in not just a textual analysis of these films but also a history of their material production and distribution Josephine Lee University of Minnesota Envisioning Asia offers an exciting new contribution to our understandings of the historical developments of American Orientalism Jeannette Roan deftly situates changing cinematic technologies within the context of U S imperial agendas in this richly nuanced analysis of shooting on location in Asia in early 20th century American cinema Wendy Kozol Oberlin College Through her vivid illustration of the role of American cinema in the material visual and ideological production of Asia Jeanette Roan takes the reader on a journey to Asia through a very different route from the virtual travel taken by the viewers of the films she discusses Mari Yoshihara University of Hawai'i at Manoa The birth of cinema coincides with the beginnings of U S expansion overseas and the classic Hollywood era coincides with the rise of the United States as a global superpower In Envisioning Asia Jeanette Roan argues that throughout this period the cinema's function as a form of virtual travel coupled with its purported authenticity served to advance America's shifting interests in Asia. Its ability to fulfill this imperial role depended however not only on the cinematic representations themselves but on the marketing of the films' production histories and in particular their use of Asian locations. Roan demonstrates this point in relation to a wide range of productions offering an engaging and useful survey of a largely neglected body of film. Not only that, but by focusing on the material practices involved in shooting films on location—that is, the actual travels, negotiations, and labor of making a film—she moves beyond formal analysis to produce a richly detailed history of American interests, attitudes, and cultural practices during the first half of the twentieth century. Jeanette Roan is Adjunct Professor of Visual Studies at California College of the Arts and author of Exotic Explorations: Travels to Asia and the Pacific in Early Cinema. In Recollecting Early Asian America: Essays in Cultural History (2002), the cover art is a publicity still from Tokyo File 212 (1951), directed by Dorrell McGowan and Stuart McGowan. The accompanying text reads: "Hundreds of spectators gather on the sidelines as technicians prepare to photograph a parade scene in Tokyo." File 212 is a Breakston McGowan Production filmed in Japan for RKO Radio distribution.
