LILI KARDELL

FOR A GUY with as much warmth and affection as Troy Donahue, it's a catastrophe not to be in love. So Troy just makes sure he's never out of love. If one romance fails, Troy soon has another going to replace it. And each has been progressively more serious than the one before—or so it seems to an outsider. "I flirt with brunettes but I take out blondes," he said back at the start of his career, and Troy wasn't kidding. First of his romances on the coast was blonde Nan Morris. He even asked her to marry him once, but she refused. Nan thought it would hurt his career. No wonder that even now, ages after they've "fallen out of love," they remain good friends. There were a long line of dates after Nan, but the next girl to make Troy talk serious, and confide to writers he was in love, was blonde Sally Todd. But this didn't last either. Being in love is one thing; getting married is another. Troy admits his girls have wanted to get married "too many times for comfort." There were more dates, many of them dark-haired beauties, but when Troy got serious again it was with blonde Lili Kardell who used to date the late Jimmy Dean. Lili even has an engagement ring from Troy, but no one in Hollywood is going to hold his breath till this wedding takes place. Troy considers himself basically conservative, and he likes his girls the same way. "I'm tired of seeing slacks on girls," he says frankly. "I like a girl who's real feminine. I like a girl in pumps and stockings and a skirt and sweater with her hair in a fresh, easy looking style." On dates as well as in private Troy likes to go to the beach, go surfing or sailing; go to movies. "I don't go to many nightclubs," he says.

"They depress me." In addition to liking the same type dates, he and Lili can help each other study scripts and she's teaching him to play golf. "I like girls an awful lot," he grins. "They rarely gripe me. But I don't like to see a girl drink. The influence of alcohol takes away from her beauty. And another thing. I don't care for fluffy pinks on anyone." It's quite a guy Lili has herself engaged to. Now the question is whether or not she can get him to add a plain band to her third finger, left hand. Troy has never thought much of the idea of going steady. "Of course, it depends on the individual," he says. "A person should first of all be honest with himself. To go steady when you don't want to—well, that causes complications." Could be the same thing applies to being engaged.
