Hosterman, 1941 Imagining Difference Leslie Robertson, 2005 Imagining Difference is an ethnography about historical and contemporary ideas of human difference expressed by residents of Fernie BC a coal mining town transforming into an international ski resort Focusing on diverse experiences of people from the European diaspora Robertson analyzes expressions of difference from the multiple locations of age ethnicity gender class and religion Her starting point is a popular local legend about an indigenous curse cast on the valley and its residents in the nineteenth century Successive interpretations of the story reveal a complicated landscape of memory and silence mapping out official and contested histories social and scientific theories as well as the edicts of political discourse Cursing becomes a metaphor for discursive power resonating in political popular and cultural contexts transmitting ideas of difference across generations and geographies Stories are powerful imaginative resources in the contexts of colonialism war immigration labour strife natural disaster treaty making and globalization This study suggests that while criteria may shift ideas of race and foreignness expressions of regionalism and class and religious identity remain fixed in the social imagination The author draws from folklore media imagery historical records and interviews field notes and verbatim accounts provide readers with a sense of the ethnographic process While situated historically and socially in Fernie BC this work will appeal to those in anthropology women s studies Native studies and history as well as to regional readers and anyone interested in life in resource towns in North America Transplanting Care Laura L.

Heinemann, 2016-07-12 The sudden call the race to the hospital the high stakes operation the drama of transplant surgery is well known But what happens before and after the surgery In Transplanting Care Laura L Heinemann examines the daily lives of midwestern organ transplant patients and those who care for them from pretransplant preparations through to the long posttransplant recovery Heinemann points out that as efforts to control healthcare costs gain urgency and as new surgical techniques drug therapies and home medical equipment advance most of the transplant process now takes place at home among kin Indeed the transplant system effectively depends on unpaid care labor typically provided by spouses parents siblings and others Drawing on scores of interviews with patients relatives and healthcare professionals Heinemann follows a variety of patients and loved ones as they undertake this uncertain and strenuous transplant journey She also shows how these home based caregiving efforts take place within the larger economic and political context of a paucity of resources for patients and caregivers who ultimately must surmount numerous obstacles The author concludes that the many snags encountered by transplant patients and loved ones make a clear case for more comprehensive health and social policy that treats care as a necessarily shared public responsibility An illuminating look at the long transplant journey Transplanting Care also offers broader insight into how we handle infirmity in America and how we might do a better job of doing so
