Structural Change In An Urban Industrial Region:

Structural Change in an Urban Industrial Region David L. McKee, Richard Earl Bennett, 1987-03-04 This anthology concerns the economic and demographic changes that have occurred in northeastern Ohio since 1960 but specifically during the 1970s and 1980s when that region's major industries rubber steel automobiles experienced severe decline Sixteen chapters reflect on the reasons for industrial restructuring the implications for population growth and future employment and investment opportunities and the role of local state and national governments in undertaking policies that generate economic activity Three themes dominate the centrality of employment in regional development the relation between economic development and product cycles and thus the need to introduce new economic activities to the region and the regional national and international constraints on local economic development initiatives Choice Much has been written concerning the erosion of the industrial base in this particular region and other areas of the country Drawing heavily upon contributions from nationally recognized experts on urban and regional development as well as input from nanacademic sources the present volume uses Northeastern Ohio as a case study of older industrial areas suffering from economic repression Among the topics discussed are the limits of traditional development fiscal implications of industrial restructuring and urban adaptibility Particular cities are also examined in order to pinpoint development problems and to offer alternative paths to local progress

Growth, Structural Change and Regional Inequality in Malaysia Asan Ali Golam Hassan, 2017-11-30 Economic development in the long run is seen as a process of structural change that is affected by economic growth Malaysia is one of the middle income economies that are going through rapid structural change Since the mid 1980s it has changed to an industrially based economy with large scale export of electrical and electronic components However thirty years after Malaysia's redistributive policies have been exercised regional inequality still exists This book examines the nature and impact of regional policies in relation to the patterns of demographic and economic structural change and in relation to growth distribution and income disparities across regions in Peninsular Malaysia The book also explores the degree to which differences in regional manufacturing distribution and concentration have contributed to regional inequality It concludes with a number of recommendations for regional policies that will reduce this inequality

Structural change and poverty reduction in Ethiopia: Economy-wide analysis of the evolving role of agriculture Dorosh, Paul, Thurlow, James, Kebede, Frehiwot Worku, Ferede, Tadele, Taffesse, Alemayehu Seyoum, 2018-09-06 This paper explores these issues for Ethiopia utilizing an economy wide computable general equilibrium CGE model based on a detailed social accounting matrix SAM We present the results of four alternative investment scenarios faster investment in i cities ii crop agriculture iii the rural non farm sector and agro industry and iv livestock The simulations suggest that investments in cities generate faster economic growth and structural transformation However given the large share of the population with incomes linked to agriculture and the rural economy investments in the rural economy are likely to continue to be more pro poor than urban public investments through the mid 2020s After the mid 2020s investments in cities become more pro poor In short though rapid economic growth and structural transformation have diminished the relative importance of the agricultural sector in Ethiopia s economy continued public investments in agriculture and the broader agri food system remain crucial for equity and poverty alleviation in Ethiopia as well as for reducing food import dependency

Structural Change and Industrial Development in the BRICS Wim Naudé,Adam Szirmai,Nobuya Haraguchi,2015-06-18 This book provides a unique and timely analysis of the role of structural change in the economic development of Brazil Russia India China and South Africa BRICS with a consideration for the role of industry and in particular manufacturing The emergence of BRICS reflects an ongoing change in the international economic order BRICS now account for very substantial part of global GDP global manufactured value added and global manufactured exports The book examines their economic experiences and structural change in BRICS over the past three decades identifying both differences and commonalities and deriving lessons for other industrializing countries Section I contains comparative studies focusing on the commonalities and differences of the experiences of BRICS Section II includes six country studies providing a more detailed analysis of the long run experiences of each of the countries Section III consists of a set of seven thematic studies focusing on specific topics such as global value chains the role of transnational corporations in the food chain the role of foreign versus domestic investment the role of domestic versus foreign demand in economic growth the diffusion of environmental energy technology and the similarities and the differences in industrial policies pursued in the five countries The book contains a summary chapter that provides an integrated perspective of the various contributions from the point of view of poverty reduction and development It asks whether the patterns of structural change and industrial development that BRICS experienced had an impact on poverty outcomes and if so what where the channels and the consequences

Urban Change in the United States and Western Europe Anita A. Summers,P. C. Cheshire,Lanfranco Senn,1999 In this completely revised second edition the authors explore what can be learned from a rigorous comparison of the patterns of urban concentrations of residents and employment in Western Europe and the United States Using a wide range of methodological techniques including economic theory econometrics regional science and institutional historical analysis the essays analyze the factors underlying urban economic development with particular emphasis on the role and effectiveness of public policy
