Structure Of Asia:

Revival: The Structure of Asia (1929) John Walter Gregory, 2018-12-20 The greatest single advance in the interpretation of the structure of Asia was the publication in 1901 of the third volume of The Face of the Earth by Edward Suess of Vienna and the time has now come when his explanations should be reconsidered in the light of the new evidence The British Association meeting in Glasgow in September 1928 afforded a suitable opportunity An international discussion was held then and the papers contributed to it have been collected in this volume Most of the chapters discuss previously published evidence but that plan was unsuitable for the Persian Arc for so much new information had been collected by the geologists of the Anglo Persian Oil Co that until it were made public any discussion of that area would have been futile Revival: The Structure of Asia (1976) John Walter Gregory, 2018-12-20 At this time of narrow specialization in science it seems almost impossible to fully grasp the personality of John Walter Gregory and his impact on the evolution of geological concepts He belonged to the generation of unusual men who by their endeavors in different technical fields made the British Empire into a domain where the sun never set Gregory was a brilliant thinker endowed with the rare combination of an incredible memory for facts and a capacity for synthesis and as his explorations extended across all continents he thus became an authority on the world as a whole Nonetheless he remained modest sincere and simple and always friendly toward his peers and his students There are few scientific fields to which he did not contribute In our present world of computer language he would be characterized by the key words of geology geography engineering and sociology a combination of disciplines which today appear unthinkable In his time he was a scholar a teacher an adventurer and a man of letters as well Regional Security Structures in Asia Ashok Kapur, 2018-10-24 Kapur argues that explanations of international relations in Asia in the post Second World War period have relied too much on the Cold War as a key explanatory factor and have not given enough emphasis to the useful concepts of regional power formation conflict formation and conflict resolution The author outlines these concepts and goes on to elaborate on them and to apply them to three key Asian regions northeast southeast and south Asia discussing practical strategic issues in an historical perspective and arguing that these concepts and other concepts which he discusses are extremely helpful in making sense of the complex pattern of international relations in Asia The Structure of Asia, 1976 Command and Control and Communications Structures in Southeast Asia John J. Lane, 1981 The Structure of Asia 1976 John Walter Gregory, 2019-02-16 At this time of narrow specialization in science it seems almost impossible to fully grasp the personality of John Walter Gregory and his impact on the evolution of geological concepts He belonged to the generation of unusual men who by their endeavors in different technical fields made the British Empire into a domain where the sun never set Gregory was a brilliant thinker endowed with the rare combination of an incredible memory for facts and a capacity for synthesis and as his explorations extended across all continents he thus became an authority on the world as a whole Nonetheless he remained modest sincere and simple and always friendly toward his peers and his students There are few scientific fields to which he did not contribute In our present world of computer language he would be characterized by the key words of geology geography engineering and sociology a combination of disciplines which today appear unthinkable In his time he was a scholar a teacher an adventurer and a man of letters as well

International Relations of East Asia Xiaoming Huang, 2019-12-28 East Asia's rapidly changing role in international security the global economy development and global governance are expertly accounted for in this much needed state of the art text Xiaoming Huang offers an engaging and informed account of the key concepts issues and actors working in this area Ranging from the region's history to culture and a comparative assessment of the region's states this text is informed throughout by a compelling theoretical framework In so doing it unpicks the often complex relationships both at the domestic level and externally Only with this understanding is it possible to make sense of the region's complex relationships both internally and externally Structured around key concepts in international relations of war and peace economic development and increased contemporary security threats this text offers an empirically rich engaging account of the changing fortunes of East Asia
