Martorella, 1998 In constructing this text my intent was to tap three bountiful wellsprings of information teacher craft wisdom research findings relative to instruction and well grounded theories Each of these streams affords both neophytes and experienced teachers abundant insights into how effective social studies instruction can be nurtured and sustained Young Citizens of the World Marilynne Boyle-Baise, Jack Zevin, 2013-12-04 Young Citizens of the World takes a clear stance Social studies is about citizenship education that is informed deliberative and activist citizenship not only as a noun something one studies but as a verb something one DOES Its holistic multicultural approach is based on this clear curricular and pedagogical purpose Straightforward engaging and highly interactive the book encourages students and their teachers to become informed think it through and take action Each chapter is written as a civic engagement which is teacher ready for use in elementary classrooms A set of six teaching strategies that are constructive inquiry driven dramatic and deliberative bring the curricular framework to life through intensive integrated meaningful studies of special places important people and significant times Readers are invited to rehearse the projects in their social studies education courses and then to reinterpret them for their classrooms The projects are supported by important resources for teaching including supportive children s literature links to internet sites and visual sources and by a Companion Website that enhances and extends the text Young Citizens of the World Marilynne Boyle-Baise, Jack Zevin, 2009-03-03 This text takes a clear stance Social studies is about citizenship education citizenship not only as a noun but as a verb something one DOES Based on this clear curricular and pedagogical purpose it lays out a holistic and multicultural three part process for civic preparation becoming informed thinking it through and taking action Six outstanding teaching strategies and teaching learning projects throughout bring this framework life Interactive Technologies and the Social Studies Peter H. Ochoa-Becker,2006-12-01 In the first edition of this book published in 1988 Shirley Engle and I offered a broader and more democratic curriculum as an alternative to the persistent back to the basics rhetoric of the 70s and 80s This curriculum urged attention to democratic practices and curricula in the school if we wanted to improve the quality of citizen participation and strengthen this democracy School practices during that period reflected a much lower priority for social studies Fewer social studies offerings fewer credits required for graduation and in many cases the job descriptions of social studies curriculum coordinators were transformed by changing their roles to general curriculum consultants The mentality that prevailed in the nation s schools was back to the basics and the basics never included or even considered the importance of heightening the education of citizens We certainly agree that citizens must be able to read write and calculate but these abilities are not sufficient for effective citizenship in a democracy This version of the original work appears at a time when young citizens teachers and schools find themselves deluged by a proliferation of curriculum standards and concomitant mandatory testing In the 90s virtually all subject areas including United States history geography economic and civics developed curriculum standards many funded by the federal government Subsequently the National Council for the Social Studies issued the Social Studies Curriculum Standards that received no federal support Accountability captured in the No Child Left Behind Act passed by Congress has become a powerful political imperative that has a substantial and disturbing influence on the curriculum teaching and learning in the first decade of the 21st century Elementary Social Studies S.G.

Preserving History Scott Monroe Waring,2011-06-01 What and how to teach in the K 16 classroom history has been a perennial and at times heated debate Beginning as early as 1892 the question of what knowledge is of the most worth and what should be the central function of the history curriculum became a focus of many interested in education It was felt that the teachers needed to move away from traditional methods of teaching history such as rote memorization and the dry and lifeless system of instruction by textbook and find new and engaging ways to broaden and cultivate the mind Unfortunately these recommendations faced many critics and did not take hold in K 16 classrooms at this time or frankly at any point since then Even though we tend to have a nostalgic memory of earlier time periods and in turn the educational capabilities of the children from various times in our nation s past the results from multiple studies examining the historical knowledge base of America s youth has remained fairly discouraging Much of the lack of knowledge present stems from the manner in which history is traditionally taught Ineffective instructional methods greatly impact the interest levels or more frequently the distaste generated for learning about historical content and thus the public s corresponding perception of the importance of history within K 16 curricula This book makes an effort at overcoming the persistent boredom and lack of historical knowledge present in our students by focusing on ways in which history instruction can be improved

Social Studies for the Elementary and Middle Grades Cynthia S. Sunal,Mary E. a constructivist framework September 9 2013 Ingrid Robinson took this book off the CRC shelf and asked that it be added to the Reserve Books Shelf Childhood and Child Labour in Industrial England Katrina Honeyman, 2016-05-23 The purpose of this collection is to bring together representative examples of the most recent work that is taking an understanding of children and childhood in new directions The two key overarching themes are diversity social economic geographical and cultural and agency the need to see children in industrial England as participants even protagonists in the process of historical change not simply as passive recipients or victims Contributors address such crucial subjects as the varied experience of work poverty and apprenticeship institutional care the political voice of children child sexual abuse and children and education This volume therefore includes some of the best innovative work on the history of children and childhood currently being written by both younger and established scholars

Experimental Curriculum-making in the Social Studies John Montgomery Gambrill, 1924 Resources in Education, 1997-04 Assessment in Geographical Education: An International Perspective Theresa Bourke, Reece Mills, Rod Lane, 2022-02-27 In recent years there has been increased attention paid to the importance of assessment in Geographical Education the chosen subject for this book Assessment is an important tool for collecting information about student learning and for providing timely data to inform key stakeholders including students teachers parents and policymakers To be effective assessment needs to be valid reliable and fair Validity is about ensuring that we assess what we claim we are assessing Reliability is about measuring performance and understanding in a consistent way Without validity and reliability assessment is unlikely to provide equitable opportunities for students to demonstrate what they know and can do As geography educators it is therefore important that we identify the core concepts and skills in geography that we want students to master We need a clear understanding of what the progression of learning looks like for each concept and skill so we can develop fit for purpose assessments that track and improve student learning While there is a substantial literature on evidence based assessment in secondary school contexts research exploring best practice assessment in geography is rare This is a concern given the distinctive nature of geography and the important role of assessment in the learning process This scholarly collection seeks to address this issue by connecting research in educational assessment with the domain of geography The chapters are written by leading researchers in Geographical Education from across the globe These chapters provide examples of innovation through the collective voices of geography teacher educator scholars from across Australia USA South Korea Germany Switzerland and Singapore What unifies the work in this book is that each chapter focuses on a key feature of the discipline of geography providing scholarly examples of evidence based practices for assessing student s knowledge and skills
