Social Use Of Information:

Communication in Social Work Joyce Lishman, 2020-07-23 Effective communication is a vital part of the social worker's job. This welcome new edition of a classic text provides students and practitioners with essential advice and guidance about communicating and interacting in a range of social work settings. Based on the author's extensive personal and teaching experience, the text offers a succinct introduction to a variety of communication techniques including symbolic non-verbal, verbal, written, and electronic forms of communication. Importantly, it discusses the perspectives of service users and explores their experiences and interpretations of how a social worker looks, acts, and speaks, thus giving a real insight into the implicit messages being conveyed. New to this edition are 'Putting it into Practice' activities and further reading suggestions designed to support learning and understanding and to enable readers to reflect critically for practice. Written in an appealing narrative style that cannot fail to draw the reader in, Communication in Social Work is an engaging and comprehensive book suitable both for social work and social care students and for newly qualified practitioners wanting to refresh their thinking and skills.

Social Capital and Information Technology Marleen Huysman, Volker Wulf, 2004 A multidisciplinary examination of the interplay between social capital (the value derived from social ties) and information technology. The concept of social capital or the value that can be derived from social ties created by goodwill, mutual support, shared language, common beliefs, and a sense of mutual obligation has been applied to a number of fields from sociology to management. It is only lately, however, that researchers in information technology and knowledge management have begun to explore the idea of social capital in relation to their fields. This collection of thirteen essays by computer scientists, sociologists, communication specialists, economists, and others presents a multidisciplinary look at this particular intersection of information technology and social science and the need to adopt a sociotechnical perspective. For the most part, the contributors take a positive view of the interplay of social capital, knowledge sharing, and community building. Some essays look at specific instances including the on-line and face-to-face relationships of a community of athletes, the building of social capital among Iranian NGOs, and the Internet-based communities created by the open source movement, while others discuss more general ideas of civic and personal communities. The last four essays examine computer applications that augment social capital, including topic and member-centered communications spaces such as the Expert Finder and the Loops system, and virtual repositories of knowledge such as the Answer Garden and Pearls of Wisdom.

Social Experimentation and Public Policymaking David H. Greenberg, Donna Links, Marvin Mandell, 2003 Social experimentation randomly assigns individuals or groups to coverage by the policy of interest or a control group, and then the groups are compared in terms of outcome. Greenberg, economics, U of Maryland; Links, mathematics/science and engineering, Community College of Baltimore County; and Mandell, policy sciences, U of Maryland, seek to assess whether the substantial investment in social experimentation in the United States has resulted in significant public policy changes. After explaining the general concepts behind social experimentation, they analyze five case studies and determine that they are not of decisive importance in state policy making but they often serve useful purposes of policy formation Annotation c 2003 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews com

Technology Integration in Higher Education: Social and Organizational Aspects Surry, Daniel W.,Gray Jr., Robert M.,Stefurak, James R.,2010-12-31 This book provides a sound overview of the ways that technology influences the human and organizational aspects of higher education and how technology is changing the relationship between faculty and students higher education experience and the role of colleges and universities within society as a whole Provided by publisher Social Science, Technical Systems, and Cooperative Work Geoffrey Bowker,Susan Leigh Star,Les Gasser,William Turner,2014-05-12 This book is the first to directly address the question of how to bridge what has been termed the great divide between the approaches of systems developers and those of social scientists to computer supported cooperative work a question that has been vigorously debated in the systems development literature Traditionally developers have been trained in formal methods and oriented to engineering and formal theoretical problems many social scientists in the CSCW field come from humanistic traditions in which results are reported in a narrative mode In spite of their differences in style the two groups have been cooperating more and more in the last decade as the people problems associated with computing become increasingly evident to everyone The authors have been encouraged to examine rigorously and in depth the theoretical basis of CSCW With contributions from field leaders in the United Kingdom France

Scandinavia Mexico and the United States this volume offers an exciting overview of the cutting edge of research and theory It constitutes a solid foundation for the rapidly coalescing field of social informatics Divided into three parts this volume covers social theory design theory and the sociotechnical system with respect to CSCW The first set of chapters looks at ways of rethinking basic social categories with the development of distributed collaborative computing technology concepts of the group technology information user and text The next section concentrates more on the lessons that can be learned at the design stage given that one wants to build a CSCW system incorporating these insights what kind of work does one need to do and how is understanding of design affected The final part looks at the integration of social and technical in the operation of working sociotechnical systems Collectively the contributors make the argument that the social and technical are irremediably linked in practice and so the great divide not only should be a thing of the past it should never have existed in the first place Social Media: The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly Yogesh K.
