The New Arab Man Marcia C. Inhorn, 2012-03-25 Middle Eastern Muslim men have been widely vilified as terrorists religious zealots and brutal oppressors of women The New Arab Man challenges these stereotypes with the stories of ordinary Middle Eastern men as they struggle to overcome infertility and childlessness through assisted reproduction Drawing on two decades of ethnographic research across the Middle East with hundreds of men from a variety of social and religious backgrounds Marcia Inhorn shows how the new Arab man is self consciously rethinking the patriarchal masculinity of his forefathers and unseating received wisdoms This is especially true in childless Middle Eastern marriages where contrary to popular belief infertility is more common among men than women Inhorn captures the marital moral and material commitments of couples undergoing assisted reproduction revealing how new technologies are transforming their lives and religious sensibilities And she looks at the changing manhood of husbands who undertake transnational egg quests set against the backdrop of war and economic uncertainty out of devotion to the infertile wives they love Trenchant and emotionally gripping The New Arab Man traces the emergence of new masculinities in the Middle East in the era of biotechnology

The New Reproductive Order Sarah Franklin, Marcia C. Inhorn, 2025-04-22 The transformative impact of new reproductive technologies over the past half century Both fertility and infertility are commonly depicted as individual biological and choice dependent conditions that can be mediated by technology In contrast The New Reproductive Order documents the complex material historical and political forces that both enable and limit human reproductivity while also arguing that both fertility and infertility have become condensed symbols of wider changes to family forms national political agendas global economies and local environments Combining anthropological sociological and intersectional feminist research from across the globe this landmark volume reveals how changing perceptions of fertility and infertility are altering how people imagine pursue and experience reproductivity both individually and collectively Using a comparative global methodology based on detailed case studies The New Reproductive Order persuasively argues that changing perceptions of fertility and infertility are giving rise to a distinctive reproductive politics based on new models of reproductive cause and effect This groundbreaking and sophisticated volume opens new horizons of scholarship on the relationship between fertility infertility reproductive technologies and social change as well as new thinking on policy practice and activism in the twenty first century s new reproductive order
