Social Working An Ethnography Of Front Line Practice:

Social Working Gerald A.J. de Montigny, 1995-12-15 In this unique work directed at social workers Gerald A J de Montigny maintains that they along with other professionals create an institutional reality through their day to day practices He traces the practical ways that social workers when involved in child protection struggle to produce a world which can be ordered systematized and subjected to their powers It is a penetrating and sensitive analysis of how social workers in their everyday practice make sense from a confusing collection of case details to create organizationally defined problems and cases De Montigny uses the tension between his experience of growing up working class and the difficult process of becoming a social worker to explore the practical activities professionals use to secure organizational power and authority over clients This tension has forced him to confront the dilemma of how to stand on the side of clients when standing inside professional and organizational realities In the first half of the book de Montigny focuses on the practices social workers use to produce a universalized professional form of knowledge He examines social workers use of ideological practices fetishization of the social work profession insertion of details from clients lives into discursive order accounting for front line practice as a problem solving scientific practice and naming of their own frustrations conflicts tensions and pain as professionally manageable phenomena In the second half of the book based on his own work in child protection he systematically examines how such reality producing practices come to be expressed as child protection He develops a synthetic account of his social work interventions on cases of child abuse and neglect This book should be read by all practitioners and students of social work It is an original and practical application of theoretical arguments to the everyday reality of social work

Qualitative Methods for Practice Research Jeffrey Longhofer, Jerry Floersch, Janet Hoy, 2013 Qualitative methods have become increasingly popular among researchers and while many comprehensive textbooks describe the standard techniques and philosophical assumptions it is often assumed that practitioners are consumers of research and not producers This innovative book describes how qualitative methods can be used to investigate the in vivo use of theory in social work practice It offers not just a comprehensive overview of methods but a concise accessible guide focused on how to study and explicate application of theory and the creative tension that inevitably exists between theory and practice Theory to practice gaps are indispensable conditions for conducting engaged scholarship which in turn promotes collaboration between researchers and practitioners in addressing practice related problems in real world settings Engaged scholarship and critical realist assumptions are applied to three case studies that combine research questions with data collection techniques and analytic strategies Thematic grounded theory and narrative research techniques are all illustrated including original quick start instructions for using ATLAS.ti software Institutional ethnography is also presented as a method that is particularly useful for social work practice settings By generating knowledge of practice in open and natural systems qualitative methods can be used to examine how practice is experienced and how interventions may be understood and transformed This cutting edge pocket guide will equip practitioner scholars with the foundation for conducting research that makes a difference
