These figures campaigned for educational reforms through their books publishing articles in newspapers delivering speeches at schools and conferences and by organizing pressure groups. Going beyond the literature in this key period the book focuses on exploring the relationship between democratic ideals and reform proposals in each figure's arguments. Displaying a variety of democratic forums for debates about education beyond parliament the book reinterprets wartime educational reforms from a different perspective and illustrates the agreements and contradictions in the educational discourse itself. Education and Labour Party Ideologies, 1900-2001 and Beyond Denis Lawton, 2005 An analysis of the relationship between labour party values and beliefs and educational ideas since 1900.

Morality and Citizenship in English Schools Susannah Wright, 2016-12-08 This book sheds new light on early twentieth century secularism by examining campaigns to challenge dominant Christian approaches to the teaching of morality and citizenship in English schools and to offer superior alternatives It brings together for the first time the activities of different educators and pressure groups operating locally nationally and internationally over a period of 47 years Who were these activists What ideological and organisational resources did they draw on What proposals did they make And how did others respond to their views Secularist activists represented a minority but offered a recurrent challenge to majority views and shaped ongoing educational debates They achieved some albeit limited influence on policy and practice They were divided among themselves and by 1944 had failed to supplant majority views But with the place of religious and secular ideals in schools remaining a subject of debate this analysis has resonance today
