The Natural History And Antiquities Of Selborne 1789:

The Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne, 1789 Gilbert White, 1793 The Natural History of Selborne Gilbert White, 1789-10 The Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne or just The Natural History of Selborne is a classic nature text by English naturalist and ornithologist Gilbert White. It was first published in 1789 by his brother Benjamin. It has been continuously in print since then with nearly 300 editions up to 2007. The book was published late in White's life, compiled from a mixture of his letters to other naturalists Thomas Pennant and Daines Barrington's Naturalist's Calendar in the second edition, comparing phenology observations made by White and William Markwick of the first appearances in the year of different animals and plants and observations of natural history organized more or less systematically by species and group. See Selborne spreads her boldest beauties round The varied valley and the mountain ground Wildly majestic What is all the pride Of flats with loads of ornaments supplied Unpleasing tasteless impotent expense Compared with Nature's rude magnificence Arise my stranger to these wild scenes haste The unfinished farm awaits your forming taste Plan the pavilion airy light and true Through the high arch call in the lengthening view Expand the forest sloping up the hill Swell to a lake the scant penurious rill Extend the vista raise the castle mound In antique taste with turrets ivy crowned Over the gay lawn the flowery shrub dispread Or with the blending garden mix the mead Bid China's pale fantastic fence delight Or with the mimic statue trap the sight The Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne Gilbert White, 1970 The Natural History and Antiquities of Selbourne Gilbert White, Francis T. Buckland, 1789 The language of birds is very ancient and like other ancient modes of speech very elliptical little is said but much is meant and understood Gilbert White The Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne 1789 The Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne 1875 edition written by Gilbert White with notes by Frank Buckland and original illustrations by P. H. Delamotte remains widely read into the 21st century as the fourth most published work in the English language. Using both letter and lyrical form White chronicles the emergence and behaviors of animal and plant life in the English countryside. His research of the earthworm's importance to the production of topsoil preceded Darwin's by over 100 years. A must for the reader curious about nature particularly bird enthusiasts The Illustrated Natural History of Selborne Gilbert White, 2004-04 More than two centuries have passed since Gilbert White was laid to rest in his unassuming grave in Selborne churchyard but published in 1789 still makes delightful reading today. His regular correspondence beginning in 1767 with two distinguished naturalists Thomas Pennant and the Honourable Daines Barrington forms the basis of The Natural History of Selborne of its description which have earned it the distinction of being the only work on natural history to have received equal acclaim as a masterpiece of English literature The Natural History & Antiquities of Selborne in the County of Southampton, by Gilbert White Gilbert 1720-1793 White, 2023-07-18 First published in 1789 this classic work on natural history presents an engaging portrait of the flora and fauna of the English countryside.
