Task of Gratitude Stephen Mills,1997-01-01 Stand To! ,2006 Canadian Books in Print 2002 Marian Butler,2002-02

The Baptists in Upper and Lower Canada before 1820 Stuart Ivison,Fred Rosser,1956-12-15 To the pioneer folk of Upper and Lower Canada Loyalists late Loyalists and the hordes of land seekers living in what seemed like religious destitution various American Baptist missionary associations in Massachusetts Vermont and New York State sent missionary preachers in the decade after 1800 Numerous small churches were established but the War of 1812 disturbed these efforts and much of the missionary activity itself had to be abandoned for an interval This may well have stimulated the co operation which had already appeared before the war between Canadian Baptist communities Out of this co operation were to develop conferences and associations of Canadian Baptist churches until by 1820 all were members of Canadian groups By 1818 travelling missionaries from the United States had almost ceased to visit the Canadian churches had begun to raise up ministers from among their own members In this very complete investigation of early Baptist history in Canada assembled from a wide variety of sources every separate group has been recorded and its development traced and all available information has been coordinated for the missionaries and ministers who served the groups The book is a veritable encyclopaedia of early Baptist history and will be invaluable to future students of Baptist history in general This study of a developing cultural tradition strikingly parallels the struggle to master the physical features of a new land Report of the Department of National Defence, Canada, for the Fiscal Year Ending March 31 ... (Militia and Air Services). Canada. Department of National Defence,1923 The Canadian Army At War - Canada's Battle In Normandy Colonel C.P. Stacey O.B.E.,2014-08-15 Contains 5 maps and 41 Illustrations The decisive battle in North West France in the summer of 1944 was fought and won by gallant men from many nations Britain the United States and Canada contributed the largest components but Poland provided a fine division the French Forces of the Interior and subsequently French regular forces played essential roles and Belgium the Netherlands and Czechoslovakia all did their part The victory won by the selfless cooperation of the men who made up these international forces is the property of no one nation it is the monument of brave soldiers who died in different uniforms for one cause If this was a joint triumph of many nations it was also a victory shared by the three fighting services Sea land and air they worked together for the defeat of the enemy so unselfishly and unceasingly that it would be difficult to say where the credit due to one element ended and that due to another began All were courageous all were skilful all were bold and together they achieved one of the greatest victories in the history of warfare and left all civilization their debtors In this campaign to which so many races and services contributed the Canadian Army played a part of some significance It is of that particular part that these pages tell Canada and the Second World War Geoffrey Hayes,Mike Bechthold,Matt Symes,2013-02-01 Terry Copp s tireless teaching research and writing has challenged generations of Canadian veterans teachers and students to discover an informed memory of their country s role in the Second World War

This collection drawn from the work of Terry's colleagues and former students considers Canada and the Second World War from a wealth of perspectives. Social, cultural and military historians address topics under five headings: The Home Front, The War of the Scientists, The Mediterranean Theatre, Normandy, Northwest Europe and The Aftermath. The questions considered are varied and provocative: How did Canadian youth and First Nations peoples understand their wartime role? What position did a Canadian scientist play in the Allied victory and in the peace? Were veterans of the Mediterranean justified in thinking theirs was the neglected theatre? How did the Canadians in Normandy overcome their opponents but not their historians? Why was a Cambridge scholar attached to the First Canadian Army to protect monuments? And why did Canadians come to commemorate the Second World War in much the same way they commemorated the First? The study of Canada in the Second World War continues to challenge, confound and surprise. In the questions it poses, the evidence it considers and the conclusions it draws, this important collection says much about the lasting influence of the work of Terry Copp.

Foreword by John Cleghorn

Evidence, History, and the Great War Gail Braybon, 2003. In the English speaking world the Great War maintains a tenacious grip on the public imagination and also continues to draw historians to an event which has been interpreted variously as a symbol of modernity, the midwife to the twentieth century and an agent of social change. Although much common knowledge about the war and its aftermath has included myth, simplification and generalisation, this has often been accepted uncritically by popular and academic writers alike. While Britain may have suffered a surfeit of war books, many telling much the same story, there is far less written about the impact of the Great War in other combatant nations. Its history was long suppressed in both fascist Italy and the communist Soviet Union; only recently have historians of Russia begun to examine a conflict which killed, maimed and displaced so many millions. Even in France and Germany the experience of 1914-18 has often been overshadowed by the Second World War. The war's social history is now ripe for reassessment and revision. The essays in this volume incorporate a European perspective, engage with the historiography of the war and consider how the primary textual, oral and pictorial evidence has been used or abused. Subjects include the politics of shellshock, the impact of war on women, the plight of refugees, food distribution in Berlin and portrait photography, all of which illuminate key debates in war history.

Riding into Battle Ted Glenn, 2018-09-08. The untold story of how Canadian Cyclists came into their own during the Hundred Days campaign of the Great War. Canada's Cyclists spent most of the First World War digging trenches, patrolling roads and delivering dispatches. But during the Hundred Days campaign at the end of the Great War, Canada's cycling troops finally came into their own. At Amiens, Cambrai and especially the Pursuit from the Sambre, the Cyclists made pioneering contributions to the development of the Canadian Corps's combined arms strategy and mobile warfare doctrine, all the while exhibiting the consummate professionalism the Corps became renowned for.

Cemeteries of the Great War by Sir Edwin Lutyens. Jeroen Geurst, Sir Edwin Landseer Lutyens, 2010. The British architect Sir Edwin Lutyens, 1869-1944, designed 140 cemeteries in the countryside of Flanders and northern France for soldiers killed in the First World War The cemeteries can be regarded as an imprint of the former battlefield on the map of Europe All are designed according to principles established beforehand based on the idea of a cathedral church or chapel in the open air and include uniform gravestones a War Stone and a Cross of Sacrifice Yet the difference in size alignment and provenance make them all unique variations on the themes in question The most memorable aspects are their meticulously chosen position in the landscape the varied selection of trees and other greenery and the architecture of the entrance and shelter buildings In an exhaustive landscape architectural analysis this opulently illustrated book charts the history of the designs and reveals the underlying principle of order and variation in the architecture All 140 cemeteries are fully documented with references to the places where they are to be found P 4 of cover Battle Grounds P.
