The Aborigines of Tasmania's Furneaux Group Paul Tapp, 2013-09-05 In the opening years of the nineteenth century the islands in Bass Strait were the happy hunting grounds of sealers and such was the fame of the region that sealers from as far afield as Mauritius and New England came to share in the rich harvest It was the practice of merchants of Hobart and Sydney to send gangs of sealers to live on the islands providing them with some provisions but expecting them in the main to subsist on the flesh of kangaroo wombat and emu The producer of this book initially set out to publish a record of the out of print essay of highly regarded anthropologist A L Meston a Launceston teacher historian and humanitarian Because of the need to qualify for a quarto Lulu self publishing format it was necessary to include material from other out of print publications a fortuitous requirement given the result an insight into an otherwise forgotten part of Tasmania's and indeed global history of the callous and shameful treatment of indigenous inhabitants

This book was originally published as a special issue of Journalism Practice Caribbean Island Movements Carlo A. Cubero, 2017-10-09 Caribbean Island Movements explores the different ways in which being mobile is central to the production and reproduction of social identities on the Caribbean island of Culebra Rather than seeing insularity and mobility and its associations as mutually exclusive components this ethnographic study demonstrates how they mutually inform each other The book proposes the term of transinsularism as a means to articulate the complex ways in which islanders construct a unique place for themselves in the world while referencing and engaging in practices of movement Based on a long term relationship to the Caribbean island of Culebra it describes how mobile islanders select from various at times contradictory discourses and practices in the process of fashioning their sense of island identity It makes the case for a conscious social creative process where a group of individuals finds ways to narrativise a life world that operates in tension with structural social forces associated with nation building colonialism and landed narratives The Action Plan for Australian Birds

2020 Stephen T. Garnett, G Barry Baker, 2021-12-01 The Action Plan for Australian Birds 2020 is the most comprehensive review of the status of Australia's avifauna ever attempted The latest in a series of action plans for Australian birds that have been produced every decade since 1992 it is also the largest The accounts in this plan have been authored by more than 300 of the most knowledgeable bird experts in the country and feature far more detail than any of the earlier plans This volume also includes accounts of over 60 taxa that are no longer considered threatened mainly thanks to sustained conservation action over many decades This extensive book covers key themes that have emerged in the last decade including the increasing impact of climate change as a threatening process most obviously in Queensland's tropical rainforests where many birds are being pushed up the mountains However the effects are also indirect as happened in the catastrophic fires of 2019-20 Many of the newly listed birds are subspecies confined to Kangaroo Island where fire destroyed over half the population But there are good news stories too especially on islands where there have been spectacular successes with predator control Such uplifting results demonstrate that when action plans are followed by action on the ground threatened species can indeed be recovered and threats alleviated Handbook of Bird Biology Irby J.
