French Connections in the English Renaissance Catherine Gimelli Martin, Hassan Melehy, 2016-04-15 The study of literature still tends to be nation based even when direct evidence contradicts longstanding notions of an autonomous literary canon In a time when current events make inevitable the acceptance of a global perspective the essays in this volume suggest a corrective to such scholarly limitations the contributors offer alternatives to received notions of influence and the more or less linear transmission of translatio studii demonstrating that they no longer provide adequate explanations for the interactions among the various literary canons of the Renaissance Offering texts on a variety of aspects of the Anglo-French Renaissance instead of concentrating on one set of borrowings or phenomena this collection points to new configurations of the relationships among national literatures Contributors address specific borrowings, rewritings and appropriations of French writing by English authors in fields ranging from lyric poetry to epic poetry to drama to political treatise The bibliography presents a comprehensive list of publications on French connections in the English Renaissance from 1902 to the present day

1898 Cuba's intellectual avant garde struggled to cast their country as a modern nation. They grappled with the challenges presented by the postcolonial situation in general and with the location of blackness within a narrative of Cuban-ness in particular. In this breakthrough study Emily Maguire examines how a cadre of writers reimagined the nation and revalorized Afro-Cuban culture through a textual production that incorporated elements of the ethnographic with the literary. Singling out the work of Lydia Cabrera as emblematic of the experimentation with genre that characterized the age, Maguire constructs a series of counterpoints that place Cabrera's work in dialogue with that of her Cuban contemporaries including Fernando Ortiz, Nicolás Guillén and Alejo Carpentier. An illuminating final chapter on Cabrera and Zora Neale Hurston widens the scope to contextualize Cuban texts within a hemispheric movement to represent black culture. Emily A. Maguire is associate professor of Spanish at Northwestern University.

Spirit Possession in French, Haitian, and Vodou Thought Alessandra Benedicty-Kokken, 2014-11-12 This book recuperates the important history that Haitian thought around Vodou possession has had in French critical theory. The author takes the period of the 1930s and 40s as the centerfold of a more complex network of relations that places Haiti as one of the pivots of a more expanded intellectual conversation around possession which links anthropology, literature, psychoanalysis, human rights and visual arts in France, Haiti and the United States. Benedicty argues that Haiti as the anthropological other serves as a kick starter to an entire French-based theoretical apparatus. Breton, Leiris, Bataille, de Certeau, Foucault and Butler but once up and running its role as catalyst is forgotten and the multiple iterations of the anthropological other are cast back into the net of Michel Rolph Trouillot's Savage Slot. The book offers the reader unfamiliar with Haiti a comprehensive interdisciplinary study of twentieth and early twenty-first century Haitian thought including a detailed timeline of important moments in the intellectual history that connects Haiti to France and the United States. The first part of the book is about global dispossessions in the first decades of the twentieth century; the second part points to how the narratives of Haiti are intimately linked to a Franco-US American discursive space constructed over the course of the twentieth century; a discursive order that has conflated the representation of Haiti with an understanding of Vodou primarily as an occult religion and not as a philosophical system. The third and fourth parts of the book examine how the novels of René Depestre, Jean-Claude Fignol and Kettly Mars have revisited the notion of possession since the fall of the Duvalier dictatorships.
