Science and the Decolonization of Social Theory Gennaro Ascione, 2016-08-12 This book addresses the ideological figure of modernity its presumed historical significance as an era and its theoretical adequacy as a frame It shows how science is evoked to prevent the sociological imagination from elaborating non Eurocentric categories and terminologies that are more adequate for a global age The idea of modernity should not only be contested but radically unthought in its foundational assumptions These assumptions inform concepts such as secularization emancipation the global and accumulation of capital This book frees these concepts from ethnocentrism and discloses a path toward a new non Eurocentric global social theory Gennaro Ascione explores the transformative potential of decolonizing knowledge through a radical reconsideration of the historical and epistemological role that the intellectual reference to science plays in the construction of concepts This ground breaking work challenges social theorists to think globally beyond modernity bringing together social theory and science in an unprecedented way. Importantly it makes accessible a new space of missing theorization for further developments and inquiries in the field.

History of Technology Volume 29 Ian Inkster, 2016-09-30. The common question from the western point of view is of the sort: why did China lose its early leadership of productive technologies to Europe during the early modern period? Answers to this seemingly clear enquiry vary from general cultural inwardness to the interferences of imperial governance. This collection surveys such theories but alters the issue by raising the notion that Chinese technologies did not so much fail as move along a path different from that of Europe. Our second collection on the Mindful Hand also shifts common ground by querying and modifying common views of the links between knowledge and technique in early modern European development. Scientific or related knowledge was not brought to technique as a socio-cultural gift from an educated elite to the working man. Rather, educated gents, practitioners, instrument makers, craftsfolk and technicians of all kinds intermingled both socially and in terms of the recognition of technical problems as well as in the assemblage of the mental, commercial and cognitive resources required to pursue innovative production projects.
