The post Cold War world has seen the emergence of new kinds of security threats Whilst traditionally security threats were perceived of in terms of military threats against a state non traditional security threats are those that pose a threat to various internal competencies of the state and its identity both home and abroad The European Union and the United States have identified Latin American cocaine trafficking as a security threat but their policy responses to it have differed This book examines the ways in which the EU and the US have conceptualized this threat Furthermore it explores the impact of cocaine trafficking on four state functions economic political public order and diplomatic in order to explain why it has become securitized Appealing to a variety of university courses this book is especially relevant to security studies and European and US policy analysis as well as criminology and sociology Assessment of Two Cost-Effectiveness Studies on Cocaine Control Policy National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Data and Research for Policy on Illegal Drugs, 1999-05-05 This study is an important first step in the development of a national policy on illegal drugs It assesses two recent cost effectiveness studies on cocaine control policy one by RAND Controlling Cocaine Supply Versus Demand Programs and the other by the Institute of Defense Analyses An Empirical Examination of Counterdrug Interdiction Program Effectiveness
The ^AWorld Heroin Market Letizia Paoli, Victoria A. Greenfield, Peter Reuter, 2009-04-10 This book is the first attempt to describe and analyze the world opiate market It looks at how the Taliban achieved a cutback in heroin production in Afghanistan a longtime goal of national and international drug policy agencies and how that cutback impacted the very robust global market for the drug Based on this and other country studies the authors show that internationally supported interventions on the supply side can open up limited opportunities for curbing consumption An Industrial Geography of Cocaine Christian M. Allen, 2013-10-14 Latin American cocaine trafficking organizations comprise an indigenous globally competitive multinational industry Their business operations are deeply ingrained within the economic and political systems of countries throughout the region While criminal enterprises operate in a more complex and uncertain setting than licit firms their competitive success is determined in fundamentally similar ways Models developed by geographers to explain the spatial behavior of licit multinational firms are profitably applied here to the operations of drug trafficking operations
