Jane Hafen,2003-01-01 The Great Plains are as rich and integral a part of American literature as they are of the North American landscape In this volume the stories poems and essays that have described celebrated and defined the region evoke the world of the American prairie from the first recorded days of Native history to the realities of life on a present day reservation from the arrival of European explorers to the experience of early settlers from the splendor of the vast and rolling grasslands to the devastation of the Dust Bowl Several essays look to the future and explore changes that would embolden the people of the Plains to continue to call home this place they have learned to value in spite of its persistent challenges The infinite variety of the Great Plains landscape and its people unfolds in works by writers as diverse as Willa Cather Loren Eiseley Louise Erdrich Ojibwe Diane Glancy Cherokee Langston Hughes Wes Jackson Garrison Keillor William Least Heat Moon Kathleen Norris Wright Morris Francis Parkman O E R Ivaag Mari Sandoz William Stafford Mark Twain Douglas Unger James Welch Blackfeet and Canadians Sharon Butala and Sinclair Ross From tribal histories to the impressions of travelers today from tales of isolation and nature s furious storms to accounts of efforts to build communities from flights of fancy to nuanced observations of the ecology of the grasslands this comprehensive volume provides a history of the intricate relationships of land and people in the Great Plains     The Cambridge Companion to the American Short Story Michael J. Collins,Gavin Jones,2023-05-25 Comprising new work by leading scholars this book traces the history of American short fiction and provides original avenues for research     Those Who Belong Jill Doerfler,2015-07-01 Despite the central role blood quantum played in political formations of American Indian identity in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries there are few studies that explore how tribal nations have contended with this transformation of tribal citizenship Those Who Belong explores how White Earth Anishinaabeg understood identity and blood quantum in the early twentieth century how it was employed and manipulated by the U S government how it came to be the sole requirement for tribal citizenship in 1961 and how a contemporary effort for constitutional reform sought a return to citizenship criteria rooted in Anishinaabe kinship replacing the blood quantum criteria with lineal descent Those Who Belong illustrates the ways in which Anishinaabeg of White Earth negotiated multifaceted identities both before and after the introduction of blood quantum as a marker of identity and as the sole requirement for tribal citizenship Doerfler s research reveals that Anishinaabe leaders resisted blood quantum as a tribal citizenship requirement for decades before acquiescing to federal pressure Constitutional reform efforts in the twenty first century brought new life to this longstanding debate and led to the adoption of a new constitution which requires lineal descent for citizenship     Death of Celilo Falls Katrine Barber,2011-07-01 For thousands of years Pacific Northwest Indians fished bartered socialized and honored their ancestors at Celilo Falls part of a nine mile stretch of the Long Narrows on the Columbia River Although the Indian community of Celilo Village survives to this day as Oregon s oldest continuously inhabited town with the construction of The Dalles Dam in 1957 traditional uses of the river were catastrophically interrupted. Most non-Indians celebrated the new generation of hydroelectricity and the easy navigability of the river highway created by the dam, but Indians lost a sustaining center to their lives when Celilo Falls was inundated. Death of Celilo Falls is a story of ordinary lives in extraordinary circumstances as neighboring communities went through tremendous economic, environmental, and cultural change in a brief period. Katrine Barber examines the negotiations and controversies that took place during the planning and construction of the dam and the profound impact the project had on both the Indian community of Celilo Village and the non-Indian town of The Dalles, intertwined with local concerns that affected the entire American West: treaty rights, federal Indian policy, environmental transformation of rivers, and the idea of progress.

Feminist Measures Lynn Keller, 1994. Explores the role of gender in poetic production, the tensions between poetry and contemporary literary theory, and the fluid boundaries between theoretical and literary writing.
