Economic Growth and Measurement Reconsidered in Botswana, Kenya, Tanzania, and Zambia, 1965-1995 Morten Jerven,2014-03-27 How do we measure African economic performance This volume studies how growth is measured in Botswana Kenya Tanzania and Zambia and challenges commonly held beliefs of African economic performance The volume offers a reconsideration of economic growth in Africa in three respects First it shows that the focus has been on average economic growth and that there has been no failure of economic growth In particular the gains made in the 1960s and 1970s have been neglected Second it emphasizes that for many countries the decline in economic growth in the 1980s was overstated as was the improvement in economic growth in the 1990s The coverage of economic activities in GDP measures is incomplete In the 1980s many economic activities were increasingly missed in the official records thus the decline in the 1980s was overestimated resulting from declining coverage and the increase in the 1990s was overestimated resulting from increasing coverage The third important reconsideration is that there is no clear association between economic growth and orthodox economic policies This is counter to the mainstream interpretation and suggests that the importance of sound economic policies has been overstated and that the importance of the external economic conditions have been understated in the prevailing explanation of African economic performance

Live from Dar es Salaam Alex Perullo,2011-10-27 A study of Dar es Salaam's music business from production and broadcasting to live performances in clubs. When socialism collapsed in Tanzania, the government-controlled music industry gave way to a vibrant independent music scene. Alex Perullo explores the world of the bands, music distributors, managers, and clubs that attest to the lively and creative music industry in Dar es Salaam. Perullo examines the formation of the city's music economy, considering the means of musical production, distribution, protection, broadcasting, and performance. He exposes both legal and illegal strategies for creating business opportunities employed by entrepreneurs who battle government restrictions and give flight to their musical aspirations. This is a singular look at the complex music landscape in one of Africa's most dynamic cities. This isn't just a book about Tanzanian popular music. It's a compendium of everything one could wish to know and more about Dar es Salaam's performance life and an ethnographic tour de force that offers an insider's trip to the sweaty heart of an African capital's music scene without having to go there. The social economy of post-independence Dar es Salaam is painstakingly interwoven into an account of every style trend and movement in the city's imaginative life from every angle. Perullo's achievement will set the standard for studies of popular culture in urban East Africa for decades to come. David B. Coplan, University of the Witwatersrand. The extensive research for this book provides valuable insight into Tanzanian culture. Live from Dar es Salaam discusses our history and examines current radio stations, performances, recording studios, and music education. In reading this book, young people will learn about what their elders did in the past, and elders will remember those things they took part in. In addition, this book will become a road map for the next generation to use in order to learn about Tanzanian popular music. It is a very important book that illustrates the past, present, and future of Tanzanian music. Remmy Ongala.

Income Distribution During System Reform and Economic Development in China Zongsheng Chen, Yunbo Zhou, 2005. The book is concerned with research on income distribution inequality of Chinese residents in the last 20 years of the 20th century and the beginning of the 21st century. Measuring and making clear the status of inequality of every consisting parts of normal income of Chinese residents is an important concept. First, on the basis of the statistical data and the estimated data as well as several kinds of methods that are used to calculate income inequality and suited for the available data, the authors computed the population income Gini Coefficients of normal income inequality respectively for China's national urban and rural areas. Second, by using urban rural income ratio, Theil index, and others, they measured the status and trends of Chinese urban rural gap and regional income disparity as well as their influence on the whole income inequality. Third, by case study and decomposition analysis, some main factors which had impacts on income inequality of urban and rural residents in China and their influence were researched. Fourth, the authors studied and measured the status and changes of the poor population and poverty rates in rural and urban areas in China. Fifth, the trend of inequality of normal income of Chinese residents was predicted at large, and the status of distribution inequality of Chinese residents was judged.

The Journal of Developing Areas, 1993 Economic Development, Poverty, And Income Distribution William Loehr, 2019-04-10 The increasing inequality and poverty that seem inevitably to accompany economic growth in developing countries have become more and more evident in recent years The search for development paths that lead to growth with equality all too difficult to find is now an area of central concern for development economists One result of their concern is this volume in which internationally known representatives of a range of disciplines address themselves to ways in which growth with equity might be successfully achieved The book begins with both empirical and theoretical background to the development issues involved and with an overview of the experience of the international development assistance community focuses on operational definitions of the poor that will permit analytical policy oriented research to lead to useful conclusions Specific concern is expressed for small business owners women peasants and recent migrants from rural to urban areas The basic question of course is what can be done about poverty and inequality includes suggestions for specific measures and provides a comprehensive comparison across a wide range of policy options The book does not solve the problem but it does point to directions that promise a reasonably high probability of success And throughout suggestions are made for the kind of interdisciplinary research required to raise that probability even further Conserving Biodiversity in East African Forests W.D. Newmark, 2013-04-17 Tanzania is one of the most biologically diverse nations in the world Traveling from west to east across Tanzania one encounters an incredible array of ecosystems and species Beginning at Lakes Victoria Tanganyika and Nyasa that form much of the western boundary of Tanzania one finds the most diverse and some of the most spectacular concentrations of endemic fish in any of the world's lakes Moving further inland from the lakes one meets the woodlands and plains of Serengeti Ngorongoro Tarangire and Lake Manyara The assemblages and movements of large mammals in these protected areas are unparalleled worldwide Traveling yet further to the east one comes to Mount Kilimanjaro the highest mountain in Africa Mount Kilimanjaro is of sufficient height to not only contain seven major vegetation zones but also maintain permanent glaciers Finally shortly before arriving at the Indian Ocean one encounters the Eastern Arc Mountains a series of isolated and geologically ancient mountains which due to their height and proximity to the Indian Ocean intercept sufficient precipitation to support in many areas moist tropical forest The Eastern Arc Mountains are among the richest sites biologically in all of Africa and harbor unusually high concentrations of endemic species species whose geographic distribution are restricted to these mountains Unfortunately much of Tanzania s biodiversity is threatened by habitat alteration destruction and exploitation The Eastern Arc forests face some of the most severe threats to any of Tanzania s biologically unique sites Bulletin of Tanzanian Affairs ,1993 Urban and Peri-urban Agriculture in Africa David Grossman,Leo M. van den Berg,Hyacinth I.
