Tarjuman Al Ashwaq:

The Tarjumán Al-ashwáq Ibn al-‘Arabī,1911 The Tarjuman Al-Ashwaq Muhyiddin Ibn al-Arabi,2016-06-07

Tarjuman al Ashwaq is a collection of 61 self standing nasibs by the Andalusian Sufi mystic Muhyi al Din Ibn al Arabi The Tarjuman Al-Ashwaq Abu Abd Allah Muhammad Ibn,2016-01-23 One of the most prolific of the medieval Sufi writers al Arabi wrote over 150 books Unfortunately very little of this output was translated up to the early 20th century This is Reynold Nicholson s translation of the Tarjuman al Ashwaq or the Interpreter of Desires the first edition of which was completed in 611 A H 1215 A D This text is of great interest aside from its literary merits as delightful but highly encoded Sufi love poetry because the author supplied extensive commentary for each poem Note The original book contains the original Arabic text following the introduction That part of the book has been omitted for technical reasons Short passages in Arabic in the body of the have been substituted with The Tarjuman al-Ashwaq: A Collection of Mystical Odes Ibn al-Arabi,2020-09-28

WHATEVER view may be taken of the respective merits of Arabic and Persian poetry I think it will generally be allowed by those familiar with the mystical literature of both nations that the Arabs excel in prose rather than in verse while the Persian prose writers on this subject cannot be compared with the poets Faridu ddin Attar Jalalu ddin Rumi Hafiz and Jami to mention only a few of the great Persian poets whose works translated into various languages have introduced the religious philosophy of Sufiism to a rapidly widening circle of European culture are as much superior to their Arab rivals including even the admirable Ibn al Farid as the Futuhat al Makkiyya and the Fusus al Hikam are superior to similar treatises in Persian The Tarjuman al Ashwaq is no exception to this rule The obscurity of its style and the strangeness of its imagery will satisfy those austere spirits for whom literature provides a refined and arduous form of intellectual exercise but the sphere in which the author moves is too abstract and remote from common experience to give pleasure to others who do not share his visionary temper or have not themselves drawn inspiration from the same order of ideas Nevertheless the work of such a bold and subtle genius deserves at any rate to be studied and students will find as a reward for their labour many noble and striking thoughts and some passages of real beauty The following lines are often quoted They express the Sufi doctrine that all ways lead to the One God My heart has become capable of every form it is a pasture for gazelles and a convent for Christian monks And a temple for idols and the pilgrim s Ka ba and the tables of the Tora and the book of the Koran I follow the religion of Love whatever way Love s camels take that is my religion and my faith The present edition was designed in the first instance for the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society and is now published in its original shape I will not repeat or expand what I have said in my brief introduction concerning the date of composition the different recensions of the text the method of interpretation and the general character of these remarkable odes but it may be useful to indicate in a few words some of the principal theories which are shadowed forth symbolically in the text and revealed more explicitly in the author s commentary Although the Tarjuman al Ashwaq affords material for an essay on Ibn al Arabi s theosophy I feel speaking for myself that further study of his works is necessary before such a task can be attempted with advantage Much valuable information is contained in a treatise on Monism by Ali b Sultan Muhammad al Qari al Harawi a polemic directed against Ibn al Arabi and his followers who held that all Being is essentially one with God notwithstanding its apparent diversity This pamphlet was written in answer to a champion of Ibn al Arabi who had collected under twenty four heads various passages in the Futuhat and the Fusus to which objection was taken by orthodox theologians and had endeavoured to justify the author against his critics Ali al Qari regards Ibn al Arabi as a dangerous infidel and gives him no quarter Of course the offending passages admit of more than one interpretation and the author would doubtless have repudiated the construction put upon them by theologians Their pantheistic import however cannot be explained away I have classified the following examples for the sake of convenience and have added a few references to the commentary on the Tarjuman The Tarjuman
