Social Inequalities And Cancer:

Social Inequalities and Cancer Manolis Kogevinas, 1997 In both industrialized and less developed societies cancer incidence and survival are related to socioeconomic factors This fascinating volume the first to examine the magnitude of these socioeconomic differences in relation to cancer provides vital information for all those interested in public health Cancer incidence and survival are related to socioeconomic status in both industrialized and less developed countries These differences can be explained in part by known risk factors particularly tobacco smoke occupational exposures reproductive behaviour diet and biological agents T

Reducing Social Inequalities in Cancer S. Vaccarella, 2019-06 This volume summarizes the current scientific evidence and identifies research priorities needed to decrease social inequalities in cancer The publication based on the expert knowledge of more than 70 international scientists from multiple disciplines undertakes a populations within populations approach highlighting the large variations in cancer incidence survival and mortality that exist between countries and within countries between social groups Several factors may lead individuals with low social status to adopt unhealthy behaviors to be exposed to a wider range and a higher intensity of cancer risk factors and to have reduced access to health care services compared with their fellow citizens A special focus is given to how the phenomenon of inequalities in cancer evolves and is reshaped over time driven by economic social political legislative and technological forces it affects everyone but the most disadvantaged individuals are particularly hard hit This IARC Scientific Publication was developed to serve as a reference for policy makers and public health officials linking to specific examples of interventions that may reduce future inequalities in cancer The vignette is attached

Social Environment and Cancer in Europe Guy Launoy, Vesna Zadnik, Michel P. Coleman, 2021-05-31 This contributed volume addresses the link between the social environment and cancer in Europe The authors document the wide range and diverse trends in cancer incidence and patient survival in Europe and they identify the main mechanisms and key influences that underlie these inequalities They suggest a series of actions and programmes to tackle these inequalities in Europe within the conceptual framework of intervention research The influence of the social environment on the risk of suffering and dying from cancer is obviously a global phenomenon as evidenced by a growing number of studies and books In part the underlying mechanisms are universal Given the availability of a new standardised measure for social deprivation in Europe the European Deprivation Index the networking of population based cancer registries across Europe as efficient surveillance tools the increasing comparability of the organisation of care in European countries and the recent launch of Europe's Beating Cancer Plan this extensive review of social inequalities in cancer on a European scale is both relevant and timely The book consists of 21 chapters organised in four sections Part I General Considerations and Methodologic Aspects Part II Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Reports Part III Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Mechanisms Part IV Towards an Evidence Based Policy for Tackling Social Inequalities in Cancer Social Environment and Cancer in Europe Towards an Evidence Based Public Health Policy is a unique resource that presents up to date methods for analysing quantitative data. It focusses on inequalities in cancer incidence and survival within the wider framework of inequalities in health. This book will be an essential reference for policy makers, researchers, public health professionals, social scientists and oncologists. Social Inequities in Cancer Dana Hashim, Friederike Erdmann, Hajo Zeeb, 2019-08-19. Social Inequities in Cancer is a compendium of articles that identify barriers and metrics on the topic of modifiable and unnecessary cancer inequalities. Social inequities have long been recognised as a strong contributing factor in health and cancer inequalities for the past several decades. Despite progress in cancer treatment, cancer incidence, mortality and survival vary markedly between and within countries. Globalisation, greater life expectancy, emerging analytical technologies and the scalability of big data have revolutionized the vantage point from which social inequities can be studied. The focus of these articles is inequalities as they relate to cancer, with the inequalities ranging from the community to the global scale. Disclaimer: Where authors are identified as personnel of the International Agency for Research on Cancer, World Health Organization, the authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in this article and they do not necessarily represent the decisions, policy or views of the International Agency for Research on Cancer, World Health Organization. Social Inequalities in Cancer Survival Øystein Kravdal, Universitetet i Oslo. Each issue is packed with extensive news about important cancer-related science, policy, politics and people. Plus there are editorials and reviews by experts in the field, book reviews and commentary on timely topics. Social Environment and Cancer in Europe Guy Launoy, 2021. This contributed volume addresses the link between the social environment and cancer in Europe. The authors document the wide range and diverse trends in cancer incidence and patient survival in Europe and they identify the main mechanisms and key influences that underlie these inequalities. They suggest a series of actions and programmes to tackle these inequalities in Europe within the conceptual framework of intervention research. The influence of the social environment on the risk of suffering and dying from cancer is obviously a global phenomenon as evidenced by a growing number of studies and books. In part, the underlying mechanisms are universal. Given the availability of a new standardised measure for social deprivation in Europe, the European Deprivation Index, the networking of population-based cancer registries across Europe as efficient surveillance tools, the increasing comparability of the organisation of care in European countries and the recent launch of Europe's Beating Cancer Plan, this extensive review of social inequalities in cancer on a European scale is both relevant and timely. The book consists of 21 chapters organised in four sections: Part I General Considerations and Methodologic Aspects; Part II Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Reports; Part III Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Mechanisms; Part IV Towards an Evidence-Based Policy for Tackling Social Inequalities in Cancer. Social Environment and Cancer in Europe: Towards an Evidence-Based Public Health Policy is a unique resource that presents up to date methods for analysing quantitative data It focusses on inequalities in cancer incidence and survival within the wider framework of inequalities in health This book will be an essential reference for policy makers researchers public health professionals social scientists and oncologists

Cancer and the Politics of Care Linda Rae Bennett, Lenore Manderson, Belinda Spagnoletti, 2023-02-13 This timely volume responds to the epic impacts of cancer as a global phenomenon Through the fine grained lens of ethnography the contributors present new thinking on how social economic race gender and other structural inequalities intersect compound and complicate health inequalities Cancer experiences and impacts are explored across eleven countries Argentina Brazil Denmark France Greece India Indonesia Italy Senegal the United Kingdom and the United States The volume engages with specific cancers from the point of primary prevention to screening diagnosis treatment or its absence and end of life care Cancer and the Politics of Care traverses new theoretical terrain through explicitly critiquing cancer interventions their limitations and success the politics that drive them and their embeddedness in local cultures and value systems It extends prior work on cancer by incorporating the perspectives of patients and their families at risk groups and communities health professionals cancer advocates and educators and patient navigators The volume advances cross cultural understandings of care resisting simple dichotomies between caregiving and receiving and reveals the fraught ethics of care that must be negotiated in resource poor settings and stratified health systems Its diversity and innovation ensures its wide utility among those working in and studying medical anthropology social anthropology and other fields at the intersections of social science medicine and health equity

Denmark around the millennium when health promoters set out to minimize delays in cancer diagnoses in hope of improving cancer survival The authors suggest a temporal reframing of cancer control that emphasizes the importance of focusing on how people potential patients as well as health care professionals experience and anticipate cancer before a diagnosis or a prediction has been made This argument compellingly challenges and augments anthropological work on cancer control that has privileged attention to the productive role of science and technology and to life with cancer or cancer risk By offering rich ethnographic insights into the introduction of the first cancer vaccine cancer signs and symptoms public discourses on delays social class and care seeking cancer suspicion in the clinic as well as the work on fast track referral the book convincingly situates cancer control in an ethical registrar involving attention to acceleration and time showing how cancer waiting times become an index of the state of the nation

Inequities and Quality of Life in Argentina Juan Pablo Celemin,Guillermo Velázquez,2022-03-16 The basis of this proposal is the study of quality of life from an interdisciplinary perspective This volume presents a set of contributions from different sciences that analyse the quality of life in Argentina The contributions come from the social disciplines Geography Economics Demography History and from the field of health Nutrition Medicine Psychology as well as the applied sciences Statistics Applied Mathematics The purpose is to present various dimensions related to the well being of the population particularly in relation to poverty human development health nutrition and morbidity Although there are works from different sciences associated with the object of study they all have a geographic component based on cartography Consequently the importance of geography is highlighted as the territorial base allows for the study quality of life from a unique perspective where the map emerges as a fundamental descriptive tool Such an approach is useful to diagnose the quality of life and its uneven spatial distribution either through index or different associated variables Thus the maps are fundamental to study the territorial configuration of the quality of life at the different scales of analysis showing spatial inequalities and the areas where it is necessary to take measures to improve the population s living conditions
