Spies of the Kaiser: Plotting the Downfall of England William Le Queux, 1909-01-01 But if the new plans for our naval base at Rosyth have already been secured by Germany I don t see what we can do I remarked What s the use of closing the stable door after the horse has been stolen That s just what we generally do in England my dear old Jack replied my friend We still think as in the days of Wellington that one Englishman is worth ten foreigners But remember the Boer War and what our shameful ignorance cost us in men and money Now as I explained last night in London the original plans of Rosyth leaked out some time ago and were actually published in certain Continental papers In consequence of this fresh plans have been prepared and adopted by the Lords of the Admiralty It is one of these which Reitmeyer informs my father is already in German hands But is not Reitmeyer a German himself I asked He s a naturalised Englishman replied my friend Ray Raymond drawing hard at his pipe as he stretched himself lazily before the fire of the inn parlour It was he who gave the gov nor a good deal of the information upon which he based those questions he asked in the House The Government refused to admit that German spies are at work in England I said Yes Jack That s just why I m down here on the Firth of Forth in order to accomplish the task I ve set myself namely to prove that German secret agents are at this moment actively at work amongst us I intend to furnish proof of the gov nor s statements and by exposing the methods of these inquisitive gentry compel the Government to introduce fresh legislation in order that the authorities may be able to deal with them At present spies may work their will in England and the law is powerless to prevent them I was standing with my back to the fire facing my friend who a barrister like myself shared with me a set of rather dismal chambers in New Stone Buildings Lincoln s Inn though he had never had occasion to practise as I unfortunately had As he sat his long thin legs outstretched towards the fire he presented the appearance of the typical athletic young Englishman aged about thirty clean shaven clean limbed with an intelligent and slightly aquiline face a pair of merry grey eyes and light brown hair closely cropped He was an all round good fellow even though his life had been cast in pleasant places Eldest son of Sir Archibald Raymond Bart the well known Cardiff coal owner who sat for East Carmarthen he had been with me at Balliol we had read together and though he now shared those dingy London chambers he resided in a prettily furnished flat in Bruton Street while I lived in rooms round in Guilford Street Bloomsbury in my lonely bachelordom He had been adopted as candidate for West Rutland at the next election and his party predicted of him great things But the long wished for General Election was still afar off therefore with commendable patriotism he had taken up the burning question of German spies in England which had been so lightly pooh poohed by both the Prime Minister and the Minister for War His intention was if possible to checkmate their activity and at the same time reveal to the public the fool s paradise in which we are living now that the Day as they call it in Germany is fast approaching the day of the invasion of Great Britain

Spies of the Kaiser William Le Queux,2017-01-19 Excerpt from Spies of the Kaiser Plotting the Downfall of England Colonel Mark Lockwood Member for Epping sounded a very serious warning note in the middle of 1908 when he asked questions of the Minister for War and afterwards of the Prime Minister respecting the presence of German spies in Norfolk Suffolk Essex and elsewhere He pointed out that for the past two years these individuals working upon a care fully prepared plan had been sketching photograph ing and carefully making notes throughout the whole of East Anglia With truth he declared that this organised system of espionage was for one reason alone namely in preparation for a sudden raid upon our shores for the Day as it is known in Germany the Day of the Invasion of England About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Spies of the Kaiser William Le Queux,2013-11 But if the new plans for our naval base at Rosyth have already been secured by Germany I don t see what we can do I remarked What s the use of closing the stable door after the horse has been stolen That s just what we generally do in England my dear old Jack replied my friend We still think as in the days of Wellington that one Englishman is worth ten foreigners But remember the Boer War and what our shameful ignorance cost us in men and money

Now as I explained last night in London the original plans of Rosyth leaked out some time ago and were actually published in certain Continental papers In consequence of this fresh plans have been prepared and adopted by the Lords of the Admiralty It is one of these which Reitmeyer informs my father is already in German hands But is not Reitmeyer a German himself I asked He s a naturalised Englishman replied my friend Ray Raymond drawing hard at his pipe as he stretched himself lazily before the fire of the inn parlour It was he who gave the gov nor a good deal of the information upon which he based those questions he asked in the House
