

AUNT SOPHIE TURNED, AND FOR A MOMENT SEEMED SPEECHLESS; THEN SHE CLASPED HER HANDS AND LAUGHED. (P. 131.)

in those sand in his eyes? He had sat by as calmly as if this anguish were quite in order. Not one single time had the flush of embarrassment or of shame risen to his face; he smoked his pipe and watched the blue rings of smoke thoughtfully with his eyes; but if he spoke, his words were always "patronising," as Aunt Sophie was in the habit of expressing herself.

The main substance of his character might be what it would, that did not concern her; it only vexed her that he should pass judgment so directly upon his dead sister's two children—the exemplary, diligent Reinhold of former days seemed to him to have lost some of his virtues, while he evidently today attributed no good qualities to the "niece." And was he not right? Reinhold was rising in his profession, he was shrewd intelligence personified—and in her head today flitted all sorts of carnival jests, as figures danced. With the glow of vexation on her face, she tried to retire unseen. The looks of both were towards her; they appeared to be looking at some object lying on the windowsill, and the rattling of the outside door might have drowned the rustle of the train. Now again all was so still that the first backward movement of the young girl attracted the attention of those standing at the window. Aunt Sophie turned, and for a moment seemed speechless; then she clasped her hands and laughed.

"You almost succeeded, Gretel! Ah, yes, it would have been a joke if your old aunt had been frightened. Well, it was nothing of that kind, but it sent a thrill through and through me." Involuntarily she pressed her right hand to her breast. "For God's sake do not let Barbe see you! . . . Well, well, how much you resemble poor Dora in that guise, and yet you have not a drop of her blood in your veins! And your face, too, is quite

Excerpt from The Lady With the Rubies A Novel Aunt Sophie had tied on her big apron and was busy stowing away the clothes pegs in its ample pockets as she took her wash down from the lines She chuckled while she stepped along under the tight stretched ropes Fresh fallen snow what was that compared to the whiteness of her bleaching table cloths and sheets From time immemorial it had only been necessary to air the linen treasures of the honorable house of Lambert and Son when forthwith there came a season of the finest bleaching weather Of course there did And why not They had as good a right to a prerogative of the sort as the emperor had to his famous emperor s weather thought Aunt Sophie with a mischievous twinkle of her eye though for there was somebody in the house who positively would not listen to such blasphemies Again to day the delicious summer breeze had dried the rows of wet sheets to perfection and the July sun had seemed to concentrate all its power upon that immense square yard From over the roofs flocks of swallows shot into that court yard like glittering steel arrows their nests hung to the stone window sills of the upper story in the eastern wing and there was nobody there to disturb the little blue coats when they settled upon the sills and engaged in their ceaseless chattering Yes there was not a creature there to disturb them by a look or startling movement of the hand for never a window of this side building turned upon its hinges save for some hours in the year when the rooms were aired immediately afterward the large flowered curtains fell to again and patiently suffered the sun to absorb from them the last bit of coloring adhering to their rotten silk threads About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged tapestry of Bengali folklore artfully capturing the essence of the region's cultural heritage through its storytelling tradition. The narrative is characterized by its vibrant prose-poetic cadence and a keen attention to the oral tradition from which these tales emerge. Each story offers insights into the values, customs, and struggles of rural Bengali life, interweaving elements of morality, humor, and adventure, thereby serving as both entertainment and a repository of social history. The literary context situates Day's work within the broader Victorian fascination with folk studies as he seeks to preserve the vanishing oral narratives of Bengal before modernization alters their fabric irreparably. Lal Behari Day was a notable Bengali writer and folklorist deeply immersed in the cultural currents of 19th-century Bengal. His background, enriched by the complexities of British colonial influence and the resurgence of interest in indigenous narratives, propelled him to document these folk tales as a means of cultural preservation and identity assertion. Day's academic pursuits and personal commitment to Bengali literature reflect his desire to reconnect readers with their roots and the profound humanity embedded within these tales. Folk Tales of Bengal is an essential read for anyone interested in ethnographic literature or the core themes of folklore. It serves as both an academic resource and a delightful collection for general readers, inviting them to explore the enchanting world of Bengal's traditional narratives. Day's stories resonate with universal meanings, making them relevant for contemporary audiences seeking cultural connections.

The Lady's Friend Mrs. Henry Peterson, 1864 Folk-Tales of Bengal Lal Behari Day, 2019-11-19 In Folk Tales of Bengal Lal Behari Day presents a rich

Folk Tales of Bengal Lal Behari Dey, 2021-06-08

Folk Tales of Bengal Life's Secret 1883 is a collection of stories by Lal Behari Dey. Inspired by the stories told to him by village elders in his boyhood, Lal Behari Dey wrote Folk Tales of Bengal Life's Secret in order to portray the lives and traditions of Bengali peasants in a positive human light. Praised by Charles Darwin for his novel Govinda Samanta Or the History of a Bengal Raiyat, Lal Behari Dey was awarded a substantial prize for his literary achievements by a prominent Bengali zamindar, cementing his reputation as a pioneering figure in Bengali literature. I have reason to believe that the stories given in this book are a genuine sample of the old-old stories told by old Bengali women from age to age through a hundred generations. With this certificate of authenticity, Lal Behari Dey presents the stories of his youth in Bengal: stories of kings and queens, gods and monsters of rich and poor, and everything in between. In Life's Secret, he tells the tale of Suo, a beautiful queen who has been unable to give birth to a son for her impatient, powerful husband. Just as she is ready to give in to despair, a mysterious healer presents her with a magical drug that will grant her the fertility she seeks. In Phakir Chand, two young friends on a journey to a foreign land encounter a princess held captive by a terrifying serpent. Saving her, they agree to remain at her palace, but only one of them can take her hand in marriage. Charming, instructive, and often surprising, Folk Tales of Bengal Life's Secret is an underappreciated masterpiece of Bengali literature from Lal Behari Dey. With a beautifully designed cover and professionally typeset manuscript, this edition of Lal Behari Dey's Folk Tales of Bengal Life's Secret is a classic work of Bengali literature reimagined for modern readers.
