Human and Technological Progress Towards the Socio-Economic Paradigm of the Future Elena G. Popkova, Marina L. Alpidovskaya, 2020-08-24 This book explores the social consequences of digitization. The authors determine the problems, substantiate the perspectives and offer recommendations for determining the role of human in modern digital society. The scientific concept homo digital is developed and the essence of its formation in the process of evolution of homo economicus is studied. The transition from the post industrial to the information society is also considered. The authors show that in the context of the digital economy the problem of economization, commercialization of non economic non profit spheres and types of economic activity become more urgent. They are analyzed through the prism of the theory of time in economics. Based on this the increase of the influence of the consumer society on the modern social environment is shown. The key role of human capital in formation of a new quality of economic growth in the digital economic environment is substantiated and transformation processes in the structure and practice of application of human capital are analyzed. The idea of social justice is reconsidered through the prism of digital society as a social environment with equal opportunities but different competences and motives. Attention is paid to the modern Russian practice of influence of the digital economy on society on the whole and each human. Scientific and methodological recommendations for indicative evaluation of quality of economic growth in the conditions of digitization of Russia's economic system are offered and the specifics of the problem of socio economic differentiation of the Russian population in the conditions of technological progress are shown. Based on this it is proved that the digital economy has a contradictory influence on society increasing the accessibility of goods and services in particular hi tech ones but also causing an urgent need for adapting to the new economic conditions. This adaptation is largely determined by capabilities of people flexibility of their thinking and ability for learning and development. Thus instead of the expected provision of balance of society its disproportions could grow in practice. Also specific features of regional migration in modern Russia in the context of digitization are determined. The role of emotional intellect in formation of the critical thinking of a company's employees is outlined. Due to this it is shown that so called human factor which is traditionally treated as a source of economic risks and costs acquires a new role in the conditions of the digital economy a source of value creation and reduction of risks of technological progress due to justified opposition to unfavorable changes. Informal labor relations based on digital communications as the highest form of evolution of these relations that is achieved in the conditions of Industry 4.0 is considered. The central role of higher education in the process of social adaptation to the conditions of Industry 4.0 is outlined. The economic and legal issues of the digital economy are considered in particular the issue of democracy in the digital society in the conditions of e government

The Decalogue and a Human Future Paul L. Lehmann, 2002-03-15 An important book for theology ethics and the church. James H Cone This book displays all the depth penetrating insight and clarity of thinking that have become the hallmarks of Lehmann's writing. It mercilessly and wonderfully exposes the superficiality and frivolousness of many of the arguments surrounding the Decalogue. Theologically instructive, intellectually satisfying and spiritually uplifting. Allan Boesak. Paul Lehmann was one of the greatest of America's Christian ethicists and one of its most influential teachers. His work has had a profound impact on many persons, especially pastors and lay folk. This final work brings him back to some of his major themes: the relation of the gospel and law, the commitment to a truly human life in this world that is shaped by God's just and loving activity in Jesus Christ, and the need for the gift of discernment to see what it is that makes and keeps human life human. One does not expect to hear much that is fresh on such worked-over moral issues as abortion and homosexuality, but in these pages Lehmann makes us think afresh and challenges us even on those familiar topics. It is sad to think that we shall hear no more from this deeply Christian and moral thinker. Patrick D. Miller, Princeton Theological Seminary. This is vintage Lehmann. His koinonia ethic continues to make enormous sense, not least in South Africa and other transitional situations where people are seeking moral discernment amid complexity and ambiguity in the quest for social justice. This book's development of Lehmann's ethic around the Ten Commandments makes it more than a textbook for students. It is a book for pastors, the laity, and the general public. It is also a wonderful culmination to the work of a great theologian. Charles Villa-Vicencio, University of Cape Town, South Africa.

Humanized Mice Tatsuji Nomura, Takeshi Watanabe, Sonoko Habu, 2008-03-11. The term humanized mouse in this text refers to a mouse in which human tissues and cells have been transplanted and show the same biological function as they do in the human body. That is, the physiological properties and functions of transplanted human tissues and cells can be analyzed in the mouse instead of using a living human body. It should therefore be possible to study the pathophysiology and treatment of human diseases in mice with good reproducibility. Thus the humanized mouse can be used as a potent tool in both basic and clinical research in the future. The development of appropriate immunodeficient mice has been indispensable in the creation of the humanized mouse, which has been achieved through many years of efforts by several laboratories. The first stage on the road to the humanized mouse was the report on nude mice by Isaacson and Cattanach in 1962. Thereafter, nude mice were studied in detail by Falanigan, and in 1968 Pantelouris found that these mice have no thymus gland, which suggested that the mice lack transplantation immunity against xenografts such as human hematopoietic stem cells. At the Nude Mouse Workshops organized by Regard Povlsen, Nomura, and colleagues that were held nine times between 1972 and 1997, the possibility of creating a humanized mouse using nude mice was extensively examined. The results, however, showed that certain human cancers can be engrafted in nude mice, but unfortunately, engraftment of normal human tissue was almost impossible.

Eschatological Hermeneutics Daniel Minch, 2018-09-20. Eschatology is the foundation for exploring Edward Schillebeeckx's work. Daniel Minch provides an in-depth analysis of his hermeneutical theology informed by access to original texts previously unavailable in English. He examines the historical and doctrinal origins of his methodology hermeneutics as human experience and the continuing relevance of the approach for today's socio-economic context Today economics drives our predictions for the future But Minch shows that Schillebeeckx's work reminds us of a new image of humanity as well as a new image of God part of the Catholic shift to a future oriented theology of hope that took place after the Second Vatican Council These resist both economic logic and fundamentalist views of God and history that have become pervasive in popular notions of Christianity

Gay, 2018-12-11 Technology has always shaped human life and our understanding of what it means to be human But does it actually encourage human flourishing By exploring the doctrine of the incarnation and what it means for our embodiment Craig Gay raises concerns about the theological implications of modern technologies and movements such as transhumanism offering an alternative vision to the path of modern technology

The Future of Art in a Postdigital Age Mel Alexenberg, 2011-04-27 In The Future of Art in a Postdigital Age artist and educator Mel Alexenberg offers a vision of a postdigital future that reveals a paradigm shift from the Hellenistic to the Hebraic roots of Western culture He ventures beyond the digital to explore postdigital perspectives rising from creative encounters among art science technology and human consciousness The interrelationships between these perspectives demonstrate the confluence between postdigital art and the dynamic Jewish structure of consciousness Alexenberg's pioneering artwork a fusion of spiritual and technological realms exemplifies the theoretical thesis of this investigation into interactive and collaborative forms that imaginatively envisages the vast potential of art in a postdigital future
