Miles, 2015-07-24 This is an exciting time to study in Athens The rescue excavations of recent years conducted during construction of the Metro system and in preparation for the 2004 Olympics Games combined with major restoration projects and a new enthusiasm for fresh examination of old material using new techniques and applications brings new perspectives and answers on many aspects of the ancient city of Athens and life politics and religion in Attica The 15 papers presented here contribute new findings that result from intensive firsthand examinations of the archaeological and epigraphical evidence They illustrate how much may be gained by reexamining material from older excavations and from the methodological shift from documenting information to closer analysis and larger historical reflection They offer a variety of perspectives on a range of issues the ambiance of the ancient city for passersby filled with roadside shrines techniques of architectural construction and sculpting religious expression in Athens including cults of Asklepios and Serapis the precise procedures for Greek sacrifice how the borders of Attica were defined over time and details of its road system In presenting this volume the contributors are continuing in a long tradition of autopsy in the sense of personal observation in Athens that began even in the Hellenistic period and has continued through the writings of centuries of travelers and academics to the present day Annual Report of the Commissioner of Education United States. Report of the Annual Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration ,1908 Lessons from the Economic Transition Salvatore Zecchini, 2013-12-01 An attentive reader embarking on this book might wonder what the economic transition to which the title refers might be In this century almost all countries have gone through periods of economic transition but which period of economic history can claim to embody the notion or to represent the era of the transition Definitely no country or group of countries has experienced anything comparable to the economic upheavals that the fall of communism has brought about in a large portion of the world in just three years 1989 to 1991 No other transition to date has prompted more interest and more studies among economists academics and policy makers than has the transformation of centrally planned economies into market based systems It is this transformation that has come to define the transition Early in the transformation process in November 1990 with the support of the Centre for Co operation with the Economies in Transition CCET I launched a conference to examine the challenges faced by these countries About six years have gone by and a new economic landscape has emerged in that part of the world The difficulties in transforming these economies have exceeded all expectations and economic performances have varied considerably across countries The time has come therefore to make a first evaluation of progress and problems with a view to extracting useful policy lessons to guide policy makers in successfully completing the transition in the near future
