Boyd,2019-06-13 This book reconsiders how we can understand archaeology on a grand scale by abandoning the claims that material remains stand for the people and institutions that produced them or that genetic change somehow caused cultural change Our challenge is to understand the worlds that made great projects like the building of Stonehenge or Mycenae possible The radiocarbon revolution made the old view that the architecture of Mycenae influenced the building of Stonehenge untenable But the recent use of big data and of genetic histories have led archaeology back to a worldview where big problems are assumed to require big solutions Making an animated plea for bottom up rather than top down solutions the authors consider how life was made possible by living in the local and materially distinct worlds of the period By considering how people once built connections between each other through their production and use of things their movement between and occupancy of places and their treatment of the dead we learn about the kinds of identities that people constructed for themselves Stonehenge did not require an architect from Mycenae for it to be built but the builders of Stonehenge and Mycenae would have shared a mutual recognition of the kinds of humans that they were and the kinds of practices these monuments were once host to The Archaeology of Identities Timothy Insoll,2007-01-24 This definitive sourcebook collates seminal articles from this increasingly important field to present a comprehensive and well balanced representation of approaches and interests in a single volume for students lecturers and researchers British and Irish Archaeology ,1994 Houses and Society in Pompeii and Herculaneum Andrew Wallace-Hadrill,2022-05-10 Few sources reveal the life of the ancient Romans as vividly as do the houses preserved by the eruption of Vesuvius Wealthy Romans lavished resources on shaping their surroundings to impress their crowds of visitors The fashions they set were taken up and imitated by ordinary citizens In this illustrated book Andrew Wallace Hadrill explores the rich potential of the houses of Pompeii and Herculaneum to offer new insights into Roman social life Exposing misconceptions derived from contemporary culture he shows the close interconnection of spheres we take as discrete public and private family and outsiders work and leisure Combining archaeological evidence with Roman texts and comparative material from other cultures Wallace Hadrill raises a range of new questions How did the organization of space and the use of decoration help to structure social encounters between owner and visitor man and woman master and slave What sort of households did the inhabitants of the Roman house form How did the world of work relate to that of entertainment and leisure How widely did the luxuries of the rich spread among the houses of craftsmen and shopkeepers Through analysis of the remains of over two hundred houses Wallace Hadrill reveals the remarkably dynamic social environment of early imperial Italy and the vital part that houses came to play in defining what it meant to live as a Roman Graecia Capta Susan E. Alcock,1993 Tracing social and economic developments from 200 B C to A D 200 the particular emphasis of this study lies in the use of archaeological surface survey data a form of evidence only recently available to examine the countryside and demographic change of the ancient world

Architecture and Order Michael Parker Pearson,Colin Richards,2003-09-02 Architecture is a powerful medium for representing ordering and classifying the world and understanding the use of space is fundamental to archaeological inquiry Architecture and Order draws on the work of archaeologists social theorists and architects to explore the way in which people relate to the architecture which surrounds them In many societies houses and tombs have encoded cultural meanings and values which are invoked and recalled through the practices of daily life Chapters include explorations of the early farming r archi eye of Europe from before the use of metals to the Classical and Medieval worlds of the Mediterranean and Europe Research of the recent past and present include an overview of hunter gatherers camp organization a reassessment of the use of space amongst the Dogon of West Africa and an examination of mental disorders relating to the use of space in Britain The volume goes beyond the implication that culture determines form to develop an approach that integrates meaning and practice The Archaeology of Ethnicity Siân Jones,2002-11 The question of ethnicity is highly controversial in contemporary archaeology The author responds to the need for a reassessment of the ways in which social groups are identified in the archeological record Making Places In The Prehistoric World Joanna Bruck,Melissa Goodman,2023-04-28 First published in 1999 This groundbreaking volume addresses issues central to the study of prehistoric settlement including group memory the transmission of ideology and the impact of mobility and seasonality on the construction of social identity Building on these themes the contributors point to new ways of understanding the relationship between settlement and landscape by replacing Capitalist models of spatial relations with more intimate histories of place
