The Killing Line Carl Clark,1986-01-01      Processing of Poultry G. C. Mead,2012-12-06 Over the last 40 years poultry meat production has undergone considerable expansion in much of the developed world The industry has changed from an essentially farm based operation to one where economies of scale in rearing and processing have led to a high degree of operational efficiency As a sequel to these changes however there is now greater emphasis on product quality rather than mere production at least cost Also the more recent growth in further processed and value added convenience items has helped to maintain a buoyant market for poultry and has shown that the industry can rapidly adapt to changing consumer needs and preferences It is in the areas of primary processing and further processed product development that the greatest technological changes have occurred within the industry Processing in particular has become more mechanical so that most stages in the production of oven ready carcasses or cut portions are now either semi or fully automated thus reducing labour costs and helping to maximise the speed and efficiency of the process However not all of the changes that have taken place have necessarily been in the best interests of maintaining product quality e g in relation to meat tenderness and microbial contamination and it is essential for any processor to understand fully the effects of processing on all aspects of meat quality including the efficacy of possible control measures research into the work of Rudolf Steiner and others including scientist students of the inner life of animals and committed defenders of animal wellbeing Rudolf Steiner describes how from the beginning of creation humans and animals have been united in deep kinship A loss of the sense of this human animal connection has resulted in an immense animal suffering the world over Especially in their suffering the animals now pose for the modern human being many pressing and perplexing questions Are the animals conscious Do they have feelings like ours Do they experience pain Do the animals have a spiritual reality and experience Do the animals have souls and selves Do the animals have capacities for cognitive intelligence emotional empathy language and memory Is there a crucial difference between the human and the animal a basic difference in kind or only a difference in degree Do animals have rights Are we justified in using the animals as we wish eating them hunting them experimenting on them Rudolf Steiner presents a vision of the ultimate redemption of the animals from their suffering What is the nature of this redemption What is our responsibility in making it happen In exploring these and related questions with the help of Rudolf Steiner s work and that of others on the issue we can begin to see the importance in our time of our relating to the animals in a completely new way a relationship that understands and respects the animals inner spiritual being and one that requires a deep grasp of our own spiritual being in relation to theirs In this book Douglas Sloan seeks to help us toward this new relationship with the animals both in concept and in everyday action BLS Report ,1955
