The urinary system

The urinary system is responsible for three major functions in the body: removing wastes, removing excess water, and controlling acid-base balance in the blood. The individual components of the urinary system, kidneys, ureters, bladder, and urethra, each play an important role in these processes.

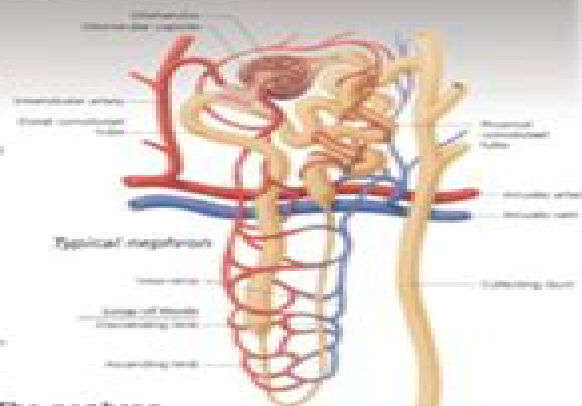

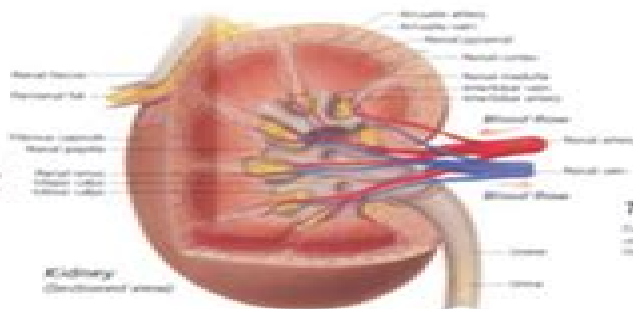

Urine formation begins within the functional units of the kidneys called nephrons. In nephrons, there are processes of filtration, reabsorption, and secretion. Secretion involves moving substances out of capillaries and into the general body fluid. Filtration involves moving substances out of capillaries and into the general body fluid. ## The kidney

The kidneys are located on each side of the spine in the back of the abdominal cavity. Each kidney is approximately 10 cm long and weighs about 150 grams. The outer layer is called the capsule, which is covered by a layer of fat called the adipose capsule.

Within the kidney are two main regions. The cortex is the outer layer, which contains the nephrons. The medulla is the inner layer, which contains the collecting ducts. The renal pelvis is the part of the kidney that leads to the ureter.

The nephron

Each kidney contains more than a million nephrons. The nephron is the functional unit of the kidney. It is a single nephron is made up of two components: the renal corpuscle, the proximal convoluted tubule, the loop of Henle, and the distal convoluted tubule.

Filtration

Substances move through the glomerular capillary and pass through the filtration barrier. This barrier is made up of three layers: the endothelial layer, the basement membrane, and the epithelial layer. The filtration barrier is made up of three layers: the endothelial layer, the basement membrane, and the epithelial layer.

How urine is produced

The kidneys produce an average of 1.5L of urine per day. Urine is produced by the nephrons. The nephrons are the functional units of the kidney. They are responsible for filtering blood and removing wastes and excess water from the body.

The composition of urine

Key stages of urine formation

- Filtration - Filtering of water, waste products, sodium, glucose and other chemicals.
- Reabsorption - Movement of water, electrolytes, and nutrients back to the bloodstream.
- Secretion - Transport of waste products from capillaries around the renal tubule back into the distal tubule for removal with the urine.

ADH and fluid levels

ADH & fluid volume

ADH (or antidiuretic hormone) decreases the permeability of the collecting ducts, which decreases the reabsorption of water. ADH is produced by the hypothalamus and stored in the posterior pituitary. The hypothalamus is the part of the brain that controls the body's internal balance. It is responsible for maintaining the body's internal balance.
