As Erika Rappaport shows between the seventeenth and twentieth centuries the boundaries of the tea industry and the British Empire overlapped but were never identical and she highlights the economic political and cultural forces that enabled the British Empire to dominate but never entirely control the worldwide production trade and consumption of tea Rappaport delves into how Europeans adopted appropriated and altered Chinese tea culture to build a widespread demand for tea in Britain and other global markets and a plantation based economy in South Asia and Africa Tea was among the earliest colonial industries in which merchants planters promoters and retailers used imperial resources to pay for global advertising and political lobbying The commercial model that tea inspired still exists and is vital for understanding how politics and publicity influence the international economy Jacket
