Winchester, 2015-07-09 Excerpt from Some Principles of Literary Criticism The following chapters were first prepared for the college lecture room and although since rewritten they doubtless still betray by a certain dull didactic manner the place of their origin While directing the work of college classes I had often looked about for a book that should give a compendious statement of the essentials of literature and the grounds of critical estimate Finding no such book I essayed to make one Two or three books on the subject born I judge of the same want that produced this one have indeed appeared since these lectures were first written but their purpose and method are quite different from those I have had in mind I have attempted neither to expound a philosophy of criticism nor to elaborate a critical method but simply to state as plainly as I might some qualities that by common consent are to be found in all writing deserving to be called literature and to lay down some fundamental principles that must be assumed in all sound critical judgments About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works      Some Principles of Literary Criticism, by C.T. though recording an event similar to that of Mark and Matt evidently gives a wholly independent account unrelated in a literary way and one in which Luke's account is in the main at least independent of Mark and Matt. Is partly parallel to Mark partly to Luke. These passages Luke 30 11 50 and 32 do not concern us at this point. Mark and Luke agree against Matt. In the location of thirteen sections which lie between Matt. And Within these limits there are certain groups of two or three sections the sections of which succeed one another in the same order as in Mark and Luke but the groups themselves are differently located. In respect to the narratives which precede and follow these limits Matt. Agrees with Mark in the order of sections except in the transposition of the conversation between Jesus and his disciples concerning the withered fig tree to a place in immediate connection with the cursing of the tree. But as Luke omits both of these sections the transposition does not result in a disagreement of Matt. With both Mark and Luke. Matt. And Luke never agree against Mark in order of sections or paragraphs. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
