Mek Some Noise Timothy Rommen, 2007-04-11 Mek Some Noise Timothy Rommen's ethnographic study of Trinidadian gospel music engages the multiple musical styles circulating in the nation's Full Gospel community and illustrates the carefully negotiated and contested spaces that they occupy in relationship to questions of identity By exploring gospelpso jamoo Jehovah's music gospel dancehall and North American gospel music along with the discourses that surround performances in these styles he illustrates the extent to which value meaning and appropriateness are continually circumscribed and reinterpreted in the process of coming to terms with what it looks and sounds like to be a Full Gospel believer in Trinidad The local regional and transnational implications of these musical styles moreover are read in relationship to their impact on belief and vice versa revealing the particularly nuanced poetics of conviction that drive both apologists and detractors of these styles Rommen sets his investigation against a concisely drawn richly historical narrative and introduces a theoretical approach which he calls the ethics of style a model that privileges the convictions embedded in this context and that emphasizes their role in shaping the terms upon which identity is continually being constructed in Trinidad The result is an extended meditation on the convictions that lie behind the creation and reception of style in Full Gospel Trinidad Copub Center for Black Music Research
