Myth and Environment in Recent Southwestern Literature , Theda Wrede, 2014-04-10 The romantic perception of the American Southwest as a wild and dangerous frontier where heroic settlers prove their endurance has often responded to a common human desire to escape from the pressures of civilization and experience an authentic relationship with nature This idealized notion about life in the Southwest however has contributed the subjugation of the indigenous populations and the natural world while helping rationalize the conquest of both In Myth and Environment in Recent Southwestern Literature Theda Wrede brings contemporary Southwestern American literature under the microscope to examine the ways in which the mythic narrative has influenced attitudes toward the land in the region Focusing on popular novels by Cormac McCarthy Barbara Kingsolver Leslie Marmon Silko and Denise Chavez Wrede explores the psychology behind the myth and discusses the ways in which the four authors deploy the mythic narrative interrogate its validity and offer visions for alternative modes of inhabiting the Southwest In combining ideas from a culturally sensitive ecofeminist theory psychoanalysis postcolonial studies and literary studies the study offers an innovative conceptual framework for discussions about environmental responsibility in the twenty first century Finally it also encourages its readers to partake in the process of mythogenesis by

No Place for Home Jay Ellis, 2013-11-05 This book was written to venture beyond interpretations of Cormac McCarthy's characters as simple antinomian and non psychological and of his landscapes as unrelated to the violent arcs of often orphaned and always emotionally isolated and socially detached characters As McCarthy usually eschews direct indications of psychology his landscapes allow us to infer much about their motivations The relationship of ambivalent nostalgia for domesticity to McCarthy's descriptions of space remains relatively unexamined at book length and through less theoretical application than close reading By including McCarthy's latest book this study offers the only complete study of all nine novels Within McCarthy studies this book extends and complicates a growing interest in space and domesticity in his work The author combines a high regard for McCarthy's stylistic prowess with a provocative reading of how his own psychological habits around gender issues and family relations power books that only appear to be stories of masculine heroics expressions of misogynistic fear or antinomian rejections of civilized life
