Sometimes I Feel For Early Readers:

The Early Reader in Children's Literature and Culture Jennifer Miskec, Annette Wannamaker, 2015-12-22 This is the first volume to consider the popular literary category of Early Readers books written and designed for children who are just beginning to read independently It argues that Early Readers deserve more scholarly attention and careful thought because they are for many younger readers their first opportunity to engage with a work of literature on their own to feel a sense of mastery over a text and to experience pleasure from the act of reading independently Using interdisciplinary approaches that draw upon and synthesize research being done in education child psychology sociology cultural studies and children's literature the volume visits Early Readers from a variety of angles as teaching tools as cultural artifacts that shape cultural and individual subjectivity as mass produced products sold to a niche market of parents educators and young children and as aesthetic objects works of literature and art with specific conventions Examining the reasons such books are so popular with young readers as well as the reasons that some adults challenge and censor them the volume considers the ways Early Readers contribute to the construction of younger children as readers thinkers consumers and as gendered raced classed subjects It also addresses children's texts that have been translated and sold around the globe examining them as part of an increasingly transnational children's media culture that may add to or supplant regional ethnic and national children's literatures and cultures While this collection focuses mostly on books written in English and often aimed at children living in the US it is important to acknowledge that these Early Readers are a major US cultural export influencing the reading habits and development of children across the globe

The Booker T. Washington Reader Booker T. Washington,2013-02-18 Here in one omnibus edition are Booker T Washington s most important books Washington was constantly and often bitterly criticized by his contemporaries for being too conciliatory to whites and not concerned enough about civil rights. It would not be until after his death that the world would find out that he had indeed worked a great deal for civil rights anonymously behind the scenes. Up from Slavery is one of the most influential biographies ever written. On one level it is the life story of Booker T. Washington and his rise from slavery to accomplished educator and activist. On another level it is the story of how an entire race strove to better itself. Washington makes it clear just how far race relations in America have come and to some extent just how much further they have to go. Written with wit and clarity. In My Larger Education Booker T. Washington explains how he came by his positions on race relations by describing the people who influenced him during the founding of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute of Alabama. In Character Building are thirty-seven addresses that Booker T. Washington gave before students, faculty, and guests at the Tuskegee Institute. These addresses take the form of timeless advice on a number of subjects. Very motivational and uplifting. Here are six historic essays on the state of race relations during the Reconstruction and early twentieth century, written from the African American point of view. Included are Industrial Education for the Negro by Booker T. Washington, The Talented Tenth by W. E. B. DuBois, The Disfranchisement of the Negro by Charles W. Chesnut, The Negro and the Law by Wilford H. Smith, The Characteristics of the Negro People by H. T. Keeling, and Representative American Negroes by Paul Laurence Dunbar.

Reading Across the Disciplines Karen Manarin, 2022-05-03 Reading Across the Disciplines offers a collection of twelve essays detailing a range of approaches to dealing with students' reading needs at the college level. Transforming reading in higher education requires more than individual faculty members working on SoTL projects in their particular fields. Teachers need to consider reading across the disciplines. In this collection, authors from Australia and North America, teaching in a variety of disciplines, explore reading in undergraduate courses, doctoral seminars, and faculty development activities. By paying attention to the particular classroom and placing those observations in conversation with scholarly literature, they create new knowledge about reading in higher education from disciplinary and cross-disciplinary perspectives. Reading Across the Disciplines demonstrates how existing research about reading can be applied to specific classroom contexts, offering models for faculty members whose own research interests may lie elsewhere but who believe in the importance of reading.

Platonic Dialogue and the Education of the Reader A. K. Cotton, 2014-02-27 In this volume Cotton examines Plato's ideas about education and learning With a particular focus on the experiences a learner must go through in developing philosophical understanding the book argues that a reader's experience can be parallel in kind and value to that of the interlocutors we see conversing in the dialogues in constituting learning The study suggests that just as Socratic conversation acts as a context for the interlocutors development of dialectical virtues so the corpus of Plato's works presents an arena for readers to progress through the different stages of learning providing them with the stimuli appropriate to their philosophical advancement at each point and encouraging them to take increasing responsibility for their own learning Accordingly the study proposes that the shape of the corpus and the changes we observe between early middle and late dialogues are best interpreted with reference to the changing needs of receivers at different stages of their philosophical development Individual chapters focus on characterization argumentation structure and unity plot and myth as means by which the dialogues encourage their readers to engage in this productive and distinctive way
