Translation's Forgotten History Heekyoung Cho,2020-05-11 Translation s Forgotten History investigates the meanings and functions that translation generated for modern national literatures during their formative period and reconsiders literature as part of a dynamic translational process of negotiating foreign values. By examining the triadic literary and cultural relations among Russia, Japan, and colonial Korea and revealing a shared sensibility and literary experience in East Asia which referred to Russia as a significant other in the formation of its own modern literatures, this book highlights translation as a radical and ineradicable part, not merely a catalyst or complement of the formation of modern national literature. Translation's Forgotten History thus rethinks the way modern literature developed in Korea and East Asia. While national canons are founded on amnesia regarding their process of formation, framing literature from the beginning as a process rather than an entity allows a more complex and accurate understanding of national literature formation in East Asia and may also provide a model for world literature today.

Writing Women in Korea Theresa Hyun, 2003-09-30. Writing Women in Korea explores the connections among translation, new forms of writing, and new representations of women in Korea from the early 1900s to the late 1930s. It examines shifts in the way translators handled material pertaining to women, the work of women translators of the time, and the relationship between translation and the original works of early twentieth-century Korean women writers. The book opens with an outline of the Chosŏn period (1392–1910) when a vernacular writing system was invented, making it possible to translate texts into Korean; in particular, Chinese writings reinforcing official ideals of feminine behavior aimed at women. The legends of European heroines and foreign literary works such as those by Ibsen, translated at the beginning of the twentieth century, helped spur the creation of the New Woman (sin-yŏng) ideal for educated women of the 1920s and 1930s. The role of women translators is explored as well as the scope of their work and the constraints they faced as translators. Finally, the author relates the writing of Kim Myŏng-sun, Pak Hwa-sŏng, and Mo Yun-suk to new trends imported into Korea through translation. She argues that these women deserve recognition for not only their creation of new forms of writing but also their contributions to Korea's emerging sense of herself as a modern and independent nation.
