The Harlem And Irish Renaissances Language Identity And Representation:

The Harlem and Irish Renaissances Tracy Mishkin, 1998 From the foreword A sensitive recuperation of a past cultural moment and a contribution to our current one Mishkin's study both participates in our present national conversation and prepares the way for future ones Looks at literary movements on two different continents and from two different periods and finds significant parallels and interrelations between them The effect is to illuminate both There is no other study like it on this scale Richard Bizot University of North Florida Drawing fascinating comparisons between two literary movements for social justice Tracy Mishkin explores the link between the Irish Renaissance that began in the 1880s and the African American movement of the 1920s known as the Harlem Renaissance Starting with evidence that Ireland's Abbey Theatre tours of the United States before World War I influenced such African Americans as Alain Locke and James Weldon Johnson Mishkin offers the first full scale discussion of the historical similarities and differences of the two movements Both rose from the ashes of history from people suffering years of oppression during which their native languages were lost or stolen to confront issues of language and identity and both had to combat negative mainstream representation of their people all the while debating how to create their own literature Included throughout is the work of women who participated in both movements but who often have been marginalized in their histories Going beyond national boundaries Mishkin takes the study of interracial literary influence across the Atlantic and establishes important parallels between the Harlem and Irish Renaissances Tracy Mishkin is assistant professor of English at Georgia College and State University in Milledgeville and editor of Literary Influence and African American Writers

economic scarcity and racial strife Southern writers embarked on a career to re imagine the American South and to re invent literary criticism Transatlantic Renaissances Literature of Ireland and the American South traces the influence of the Irish Revival upon the Southern Renaissance exploring how the latter looked to the former for guidance artistic innovation and models for self invention and regional renovation While Deleuze and Guattari s model for minor literature refers to minority or regional authors who work within a major language for purposes of subversion Artuso modifies their term along generic and thematic lines to refer to errant female juveniles within subsidiary genres whose nonconformist development threatens to disrupt the dominant patriarchal culture of a region or nation Using the themes of initiation and maturation to anchor the book Artuso analyzes how the volatile development of young women in revivalist texts often reflects or questions larger growth pangs and patterns including the evolution of the literary revival itself and the development of a regional minority group that must work within a dominant culture language and nation while seeking methods of subversion With minor literature as the container for undervalued genres such as popular fiction and short stories often considered an author s juvenilia this work investigates not only how these texts challenge the authoritative claims of the novel but also scrutinizes the renaissance trope of female rebirth as the revivalists often figured cultural national or regional regeneration through the metamorphoses or maturation of female protagonists such as Cathleen n Houlihan Scarlett O Hara and Virgie Rainey Drawing upon New Historical New Critical and postcolonial approaches Artuso examines works by Lady Gregory Margaret Mitchell Eudora Welty Elizabeth Bowen Jean Toomer and James Joyce
