The Open Road Ababio O. Ababio, 2001 In Where is America Ababio walks us through his day to day experiences after his return from Africa He brings to fold the cultural mannerisms that despite years in the America are hard to leave behind Through him we see transformations and feel the glorious experience of transcending from alien stranger to citizen From stranger to a member of the American family He reflects on his role as citizen in his new society where success depends on how far one can go and nostalgically crystallizes the pain of leaving native land and detachment from childhood friends who time has dispersed to various parts of the diaspora Yet Where is America is more than a personal journey through the new land It is a portrait of the reality and quest for the American dream

Star Journal The Man-Eaters of Tsavo, and Other East African Adventures J. H. Patterson, 2023-09-18 J H Patterson's book The Man Eaters of Tsavo and Other East African Adventures is a gripping recount of the author's experiences with the infamous man eating lions of Tsavo during the construction of a railway bridge in East Africa. Patterson's narrative style is straightforward and detailed, immersing the reader in the dangerous and thrilling escapades in the African wilderness. The book not only serves as a thrilling adventure story but also sheds light on the challenges faced by European colonizers in Africa at the turn of the 20th century. Patterson's vivid descriptions of the landscape and his encounters with wildlife make this book a compelling and educational read for those interested in African history and wildlife conservation. Migration and Return in Modern African Literature Ernest Cole, 2025 Using close readings of nine novels by African or African descended novelists, this book examines three phases of African migration: departure, disillusionment, and the impulse to return. The experiences of African migrants in the diaspora are deeply inflected by the condition of living as Black bodies in white spaces. In this work, author Ernest Cole examines closely the narratives of migration and return presented in nine powerful novels by authors who include Chimamanda Adichie, NoViolet Bulawayo, Teju Cole, and others. The novels reveal a reversal of expectations that migrants from Africa experience upon arrival in the West: a reversal prompted in part by the racial prejudice they are confronted with as Black individuals. As the author notes, the novels also illustrate the desire to return to the homeland as a better alternative to the precarious life in the West, even though such a move is not without its complications. The study is divided into three parts with seven chapters. The first two chapters deal with the reasons for the departure of migrants from the continent; the next two depict the experiences of migrants in the West; and the last three focus on contemplations of the return journey home. Collectively, the chapters lay out three phases in the migration process: departure from home, disillusionment in the West, and return to the country of origin. Within this framework, the book uses displacement and dislocation to examine a host of themes: social alienation, alterity, and the precarity of Africans in the diaspora.
