

IN CONGRESS. JULY 4, 1776.

Unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

Prudence, in such a case, would dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that even the most arduous struggle for Liberty may be carried on with less bloodshed and confusion, than would be necessary if the Government were to be changed for every petty Cause.

We therefore the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress assembled, solemnly publish and declare, That the thirteen united States of America, are freemen and independent States, absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connections between them and the Kingdom of Great Britain, are hereby totally dissolved.

That the Prince of Wales, being born a British Subject, and still remaining one, is by the Declaration of Independence of these Colonies, and by the Declaration of the thirteen united States of America, declared to be a traitor to the United States, and a public Enemy to the same.

That the said Prince of Wales, being a traitor to the United States, and a public Enemy to the same, is by the Declaration of Independence of these Colonies, and by the Declaration of the thirteen united States of America, declared to be a traitor to the United States, and a public Enemy to the same.
