The Olynthiacs and the Phillippics of Demosthenes Demosthenes, 2016-06-21 Olynthus was a city in Macedonia at the head of the Toronaic gulf and north of the peninsula of Pallene It was colonized by a people from Chalcis in Euboea and commanded a large district called Chalcidice in which there were thirty two cities Over all this tract the sway of Olynthus was considerable and she had waged wars anciently with Athens and Sparta and been formidable to Philip s predecessors on the throne of Macedon Soon after Philip s accession the Olynthians had disputes with him which were at first accommodated and he gratified them by the cession of Anthemus They then joined him in a war against Athens and he gave up to them Potidaea which had yielded to their united arms After the lapse of some years during which Philip had greatly increased his power and acquired considerable influence in Thessaly and Thrace the Olynthians became alarmed and began to think him too dangerous a neighbor The immediate cause of rupture was an attack which he made on one of the Chalcidian towns An embassy was instantly sent to Athens to negotiate an alliance Philip considering this as an infraction of their treaty with him declared war against them and invaded their territory A second embassy was sent to Athens pressing for assistance The question was debated in the popular assembly Demades an orator of considerable ability but profligate character opposed the alliance Many speakers were heard and at length Demosthenes rose to support the prayer of the embassy delivering one of those clear and forcible speeches which seldom failed to make a strong impression on his audience The alliance was accepted and succors voted
