Study Of Lives:

The Study of Lives Robert W. White, 2023-01-13 The Study of Lives reveals for the first time the extent of Henry A Murray's considerable influence on the study of personality. Throughout his long and distinguished career, he has either trained or strongly influenced some of the world's leading psychologists, eighteen of whom have written fascinating essays for this book. The range of topics presented here is as diverse and highly original as Murray's own ideas about personality. Everyone concerned with the study of personality will find this book an excellent sampling of the best work being done in the field. The study of lives is a phrase Henry A Murray has often used to describe his own work, and it suggests his central conviction that living beings must be studied as living wholes. Personality, he has repeatedly pointed out, is a dynamic process, a constantly changing configuration of thoughts, feelings, and actions occurring in a social environment and continuing throughout life. If small parts and short segments of human affairs have to be isolated for detailed scrutiny, they must still be understood as parts of a patterned organic system and as segments of a lifelong process. This has never meant for him that all research should take the form of collecting life histories, although his contributions along this line have been outstanding. It implies simply that isolating, fragmenting, and learning just a tiny bit about a lot of people tend to carry us away from what is most worth studying. The essays in this book are grouped under headings that represent some of Murray's strongest interests. His conception of personality as a dynamic process is reflected in Part I, which deals with continuities and changes in the course of life. His interest in devising procedures suitable for disclosing live feelings, fantasies, and adaptations, and his insistence on the necessity for an adequate taxonomy of carefully discriminated, carefully defined variables, are represented in the papers of Part II. His view that creativity is a central property of human nature has contributed to the reflections and researches that make up Part III. Finally, his concern with values, the great blind spot of traditional science but so obviously a momentous problem for contemporary lives and societies, has been taken up in several different ways by the authors of Part IV.

The Routledge International Handbook on Narrative and Life History Ivor Goodson, Ari Antikainen, Pat Sikes, Molly Andrews, 2016-10-04 In recent decades, there has been a substantial turn towards narrative and life history study. The embrace of narrative and life history work has accompanied the move to postmodernism and post-structuralism across a wide range of disciplines: sociological studies, gender studies, cultural studies, social history, literary theory, and most recently, psychology. Written by leading international scholars from the main contributing perspectives and disciplines, The Routledge International Handbook on Narrative and Life History seeks to capture the range and scope as well as the considerable complexity of the field of narrative study and life history work by situating these fields of study within the historical and contemporary context. Topics covered include: The historical emergences of life history and narrative study; Techniques for conducting life history and narrative study; Identity and politics; Generational history; Social and psycho-social approaches to narrative history. With chapters from expert contributors, this volume will prove a comprehensive and authoritative resource.

to students researchers and educators interested in narrative theory analysis and interpretation Researching with Feeling Caroline Clarke, Mike Broussine, Linda Watts, 2014-10-10 Why should researchers be interested in their feelings and emotions as they carry out research Emotion is what it is to exist to be human and is present in every sphere of our lives All activities are infused with emotion even those that are constructed as rational because rationality and emotionality are interpenetrated and entwined because all thinking is tinged with feeling and all feeling is tinged with thinking This book illuminates the emotional processes of doing social and organizational research and the implications of this for the outcomes of research With contributions from leading academics and research practitioners it addresses the significant issue of the sometimes intense emotional experiences involved in doing research and the implications it has for the theory and practice of social research By examining the nature of feelings and emotions it explores how we might understand researchers emotions and experiences and considers the often powerful feelings encountered in a variety of research contexts Topics discussed include power relations psycho social explanations of researcher emotions paradoxical relations with research participants and the sometimes disturbing data that is gained research supervision the politics of research gender publishing undergoing vivas and presenting at conferences This book will therefore be a valuable companion to researchers and research students from the start of their career onwards Auto/Biography across the Americas Ricia A. Chansky, 2016-08-05 Auto biographical narratives of the Americas are marked by the underlying themes of movement and belonging This collection proposes that the impact of the historic or contemporary movement of peoples to in and from the Americas whether chosen or forced motivates the ways in which identities are constructed in this contested space Such movement results in a cyclical quest to belong and to understand belonging that reverberates through narratives of the Americas The volume brings together essays written from diverse national cultural linguistic and disciplinary perspectives to trace these transnational motifs in life writing across the Americas Drawing on international scholars from the seemingly disparate regions of the Americas North America the Caribbean and Latin America this book extends critical theories of life writing beyond limiting national boundaries The scholarship included approaches narrative inquiry from the fields of literature linguistics history art history sociology anthropology political science pedagogy gender studies critical race studies and indigenous studies As a whole this volume advances discourse in auto biography studies life writing and identity studies by locating transnational themes in narratives of the Americas and placing them in international and interdisciplinary conversations University of Toronto Studies University of Toronto, 2014 Longitudinal Methods in Youth Research Julia Cook, Quentin Maire, Johanna Wyn, 2024-05-29 This book addresses how longitudinal research approaches are used to understand young people s lives It elucidates how youth researchers use longitudinal approaches and how longitudinal research can help us to both understand and shape the field of youth sociology Chapters discuss the creation of knowledge about youth and how longitudinal research shapes the field of youth sociology and shed light on key tensions and emerging debates in longitudinal youth research
