The Furneaux Group:

The Aborigines of Tasmania's Furneaux Group Paul Tapp, 2013-09-05 In the opening years of the nineteenth century the islands in Bass Strait were the happy hunting grounds of sealers and such was the fame of the region that sealers from as far afield as Mauritius and New England came to share in the rich harvest It was the practice of merchants of Hobart and Sydney to send gangs of sealers to live on the islands providing them with some provisions but expecting them in the main to subsist on the flesh of kangaroo wombat and emu The producer of this book initially set out to publish a record of the out of print essay of highly regarded anthropologist A L Meston a Launceston teacher historian and humanitarian Because of the need to qualify for a quarto Lulu self publishing format it was necessary to include material from other out of print publications a fortuitous requirement given the result an insight into an otherwise forgotten part of Tasmania s and indeed global history of the callous and shameful treatment of indigenous inhabitants

The Furneaux Group, Bass Strait Richard Murray Fowler, 1980-01-01 Case Studies on the Allocation of Transferable Quota Rights in Fisheries Ross Shotton, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2001-01-01 This report contains 23 studies which examine the initial allocations of transferable fishing quotas by a variety of fisheries management regimes The case studies include accounts from the UK the Netherlands Iceland Canada United States South Africa Australia and New Zealand

Wrecks in the Furneaux Group (Flinders Island). Jack Kenneth Loney, 1995 Island Ecology M. Gorman, 2012-12-06 The islands of the Pacific and East Indies made an enormous and fateful impact on the minds of Charles Darwin and Alfred Wallace the fathers of modern evolutionary theory Since then island floras and faunas have continued to play a central role in the development of evolutionary and more recently ecological thought For much of this century island ecology was a descriptive science and a wealth of information has been amassed on patterns of species distributions on the composition of island floras and faunas on the classification of islands into types such as oceanic and continental on the taxonomic description of insular species and sub species and on the adaptations often bizarre of island creatures However biologists are not satisfied for long with the mere collection of data and the description of patterns but seek unifying theories Island ecology was transformed into a predictive science by the publication in 1967 of MacArthur and Wilson s Theory of Island Biogeography This perhaps the most influential book written on island ecology has been the stimulus for a generation of theoretical ecologists and gifted field workers The books listed below in the bibliography will indicate to the reader the vast scope of island ecology and the changes in approach that have taken place over the years

Man , 1920 Roving Mariners Lynette Russell, 2012-11-01 For most Australian Aboriginal people the impact of colonialism was blunt dispossession dislocation disease murder and missionization Yet there is another story of Australian history that has remained untold a story of enterprise and entrepreneurship of Aboriginal people seizing the opportunity to profit from life at sea as whalers and sealers In some cases participation was voluntary in others it was more invidious and involved kidnapping and trade in women In many cases the individuals maintained and exercised a degree of personal autonomy and agency within their new circumstances This book explores some of their lives and adventures by analyzing archival records of maritime industry captains logs ships records and the journals of the sailors themselves among other artifacts Much of what is known about this period comes from the writings of Herman Melville and in this book Melville s whaling novels act as a prism through which relations aboard ships are understood Drawing on both history and literature Roving Mariners provides a comprehensive history of Australian Aboriginal whaling and sealing , The Victorian Naturalist ,1926 Biogeography and Ecology in Tasmania W.D.
