the ontological order of time nor causation It explores the question of how different kinds of systems anticipate and examines the risks and uses of such anticipatory practices The book first summarizes the research on anticipation conducted within a range of different disciplines and describes the connection between the anticipatory point of view and futures studies Following that its chapters on Wholes Time and Emergence make explicit the ontological framework within which anticipation finds its place It then goes on to discuss Systems Complexity and the Modeling Relation and provides the scientific background supporting anticipation It restricts formal technicalities to one chapter and presents those technicalities twice in formal and plain words to advance understanding The final chapter shows that all the threads presented in the previous chapters naturally converge toward what has come to be called Discipline of Anticipation

Rise and Fall of the Carbon Civilisation Patrick Moriarty, Damon Honnery, 2010-10-27 A vast amount has been written on climate change and what should be our response Rise and Fall of the Carbon Civilisation suggests that most of this literature takes a far too optimistic position regarding the potential for conventional mitigation solutions to achieve the deep cuts in greenhouse gases necessary in the limited time frame we have available In addition global environmental problems as exemplified by climate change and global resource problems such as fossil fuel depletion or fresh water scarcity have largely been seen as separate issues Further proposals for solution of these problems often focus at the national level when the problems are global The authors argue that the various challenges the planet faces are both serious and interconnected Rise and Fall of the Carbon Civilisation takes a global perspective in its treatment of various solutions renewable energy nuclear energy energy efficiency carbon sequestration and geo engineering It also addresses the possibility that realistic solutions cannot be achieved until the fundamentally ethical question of global equity both across nations today and also inter generational is fully addressed Such an approach will also involve reorienting the global economy away from an emphasis on growth and toward the direct satisfaction of basic human needs for all the Earth's people Rise and Fall of the Carbon Civilisation is aimed at the many members of the public with an awareness of climate change but who wish to find out more about how we need to respond to the challenge It will also be of interest to technical professionals as well as postgraduate students and researchers from the environmental and engineering science sectors
