

MODULE 3 FREEDOM AS FOUNDATION FOR MORAL ACTS

KANT'S PHILOSOPHY ON FREEDOM AND MORALITY, THE PRINCIPLES OF JUSTICE AND FAIRNESS

1. KANT'S PHILOSOPHY ON FREEDOM

Kant's definition of freedom is the right to control one's actions based on reason, not desire. All of this can be simplified to the definition of autonomy. The term Autonomy derives from the Greek term, which translates into self-legislator. The principle, then, is not to live by the animalistic rules forced on them from birth, but rather to live by the laws that you enforce on yourself. Therefore, from Kant's point of view, libertarian freedom is not absolute, but in fact, it is the subjugation of oneself to one's wish.

There is only one inherent right, "says Kant," freedom (independence from being limited by the option of another) to the degree that it can coexist with the freedom of each other following universal law". Kant opposes any other justification for the state, in particular by arguing that the welfare of people can not be the foundation of state power.

He claims that the state can not legally enforce any specific definition of happiness on its people. It will be for the dictator to see people as infants, believing that they are incapable of grasping what is beneficial or detrimental to themselves.

Freedom is not the only reason for the ideals that underlies the state. In Theory and Practice, Kant makes equality the first of three concepts, such as the freedom of a human being as a member of a state, the dignity of each person as a subject, and the freedom of any member of the commonwealth as a resident.

As discussed in "Theory and Practice" Freedom highlighted the autonomous right of all individuals to conceive of happiness in their way. Interference with another's freedom is understood as coercing the other to be happy as the former sees fit.)

Immanuel Kant accentuates the following philosophy on freedom:

1. Individuals have the right to choose one's conduct based on reason, not desire.
2. Individuals have to abide by the rules that they follow.
3. Individuals are independent from being limited by the option of others to the extent that they may coexist with each other's freedom under universal rule.
4. Equality is the most among the various freedoms and freedom is the only inherent power. The three concepts of freedom are the freedom of a human being as a member of a state, the dignity of each person as a subject, and the freedom of any member of the commonwealth as a resident.
5. Individuals have an autonomous right to be happy in their own way, and the intervention of another's freedom means forcing others to be happy.
