Liddy,2017-08-15 The political narrative of late medieval English towns is often reduced to the story of the gradual intensification of oligarchy in which power was exercised and projected by an ever smaller ruling group over an increasingly subservient urban population Contesting the City takes its inspiration not from English historiography but from a more dynamic continental scholarship on towns in the southern Low Countries Germany and France Its premise is that scholarly debate about urban oligarchy has obscured contemporary debate about urban citizenship It identifies from the records of English towns a tradition of urban citizenship which did not draw upon the intellectual legacy of classical models of the citizen This was a vernacular citizenship which was not peculiar to England but which was present elsewhere in late medieval Europe It was a citizenship that was defined and created through action There were multiple and divergent ideas about citizenship which encouraged townspeople to make demands to assert rights and to resist authority This volume exploits the rich archival sources of the five major towns in England Bristol Coventry London Norwich and York in order to present a new picture of town government and urban politics over three centuries The power of urban governors was much more precarious than historians have imagined Urban oligarchy could never prevail whether ideologically or in practice when there was never a single fixed meaning of the citizen Leet Jurisdiction in the City of Norwich During the XIIIth and XIVth Centuries Norwich (England). Court Leet, William Hudson, 1892 The Berlin Tenement and the City Katharina Borsi, 2025-06-23 The Berlin Tenement and the City describes the development of the Berlin tenement from 1860 to 1914 showing how it became both Berlin s standard housing type and its principal urban component the city s ubiquitous typology In contrast to earlier historical categorizations of the tenement as a rental barrack here it is described as an evolving typology that dynamically responded to the demands of the city and urban reform In this dynamic understanding of architecture the tenement is the protagonist of the actual unfolding of the city its growth and densification as well as its spatial and social differentiation Charting the evolution of the productive tenement into a morphology combining living and manufacturing and the rise of tenements increasingly differentiated according to class traces their contribution to the evolution and generalization of norms of housing and domesticity This book is essential reading for scholars students architects and urbanists interested in Berlin or the history of housing and the city The Roman History, from the Foundation of the City of Rome, to the Destruction of the Western Empire Oliver Goldsmith, 1792
