Teaching Mission In A Global Context:

Teaching Mission in a Global Context Patricia Lloyd-Sidle, Bonnie Sue Lewis, 2001-01-01 This book is a collection of eleven essays about the practice of mission The first section titled Feet First is about the way in which Christian practices many of them taken for granted shape mission The next section deals with the issue of transformation in mission work and the related concerns of mutuality solidarity and marginality The third section takes up the situation of the relation of Christianity to other religions Finally the last four essays take up spirituality as an inward and outward event doing mission in the context of North America and finally the development of a new theological identity based on the image of God as a missionary God

Women and Christian Mission Frances Adeney, 2015-11-04 What are Christian women thinking about mission How do they do mission What informs their knowledge and action as they address issues in a complex world where religious proselytizing has become suspect This empirical study explores those questions finding congruence among women from diverse backgrounds and cultural contexts Women in mission face common identity issues utilize art and beauty in their work and develop character as they overcome obstacles in their cultural and denominational settings Through nearly one hundred interviews of women in Europe Asia Brazil and the United States a study of women s theologies of mission lectures and countless conversations with women around the globe this study finds common themes among contemporary women doing Christian mission This book fills a lacuna in mission studies that professors pastors and church women and men will find informative and refreshing

American Missionaries, Korean Protestants, and the Changing Shape of World Christianity, 1884-1965 William Yoo, 2016-10-04 This book examines the partnerships and power struggles between American missionaries and Korean Protestant leaders in both nations from the late 19th century to the aftermath of the Korean War Yoo analyzes American and Korean sources including a plethora of unpublished archival materials to uncover the complicated histories of cooperation and contestation behind the evolving relationships between Americans and Koreans at the same time the majority of the world Christian population shifted from the Global North to the Global South American and Korean Protestants cultivated deep bonds with one another but they also clashed over essential matters of ecclesial authority cultural difference geopolitics and women s leadership This multifaceted approach incorporating the perspectives of missionaries migrants ministers diplomats and interracial couples casts new light on American and Korean Christianities and captures American and Korean Protestants mutually engaged in a global movement that helped give birth to new Christian traditions in Korea created new transnational religious and humanitarian partnerships such as the World Vision organization and transformed global Christian traditions ranging from Pentecostalism to Presbyterianism

Mission Carlos F. Cardoza-Orlandi, 2002-06-01 Mission has become for many North American Christians an ambiguous and often uncomfortable term To many it brings to mind a past in which western culture was identified with the gospel in missionary practice and programs Distressed with this history and uncertain about how to overcome it many prefer to ignore the New Testament mandate that the church must be in mission if it is to be the church Others swing the other way declaring that everything the church does is mission depriving the idea of mission of its power to define those specific actions of God which proclaim the gospel and build God's kingdom The church exists by missions just as fire exists by burning With these words of Emil Brunner the author reminds us that to be the church is to be in mission After describing the various captivities of mission which plague North American Christianity the author argues for a robust and engaged practice of mission beginning in congregations and extending to the broader community

Legal Education in the Global Context Christopher Gane, Robin Hui Huang, 2017-05-15 This book discusses the opportunities and challenges facing legal education in the era of globalization It identifies the knowledge and skills that law students will require in order to prepare for the practice of tomorrow and explores pedagogical shifts legal education needs to make inside and outside of the classroom With contributions from leading experts on legal education from various jurisdictions across the globe the work combines theoretical depth with practical insights Seeking to understand the changing landscape of legal education in the era of globalization the contributions find that law schools can and must adopt educational strategies that at least present students with different understandings of what studying and practicing law is meant to be about They find that law schools need to offer their students choices a vision of practice that is not driven entirely by the demands of the marketplace or the needs of major international law firms Bridging the gap between theory and practice this book makes a significant contribution to the impact of globalization on legal education and how students and law schools need to adapt for the future It will be of great interest to academics and students of comparative legal studies and legal education as well as policy makers and practitioners

Called as Partners in Christ's Service Sherron Kay George, 2004-06-07 Using a study of the Gospel of John as a framework Sherron George affirms that God's mission in partnership by its very nature must be ecumenical This book is intended for all Christians engaged in mission with God and others It is offered as a theological and practical tool to all in the global church who engage in re-inventing partnership in mission for the twenty first century

Making the World Global Isaac A. Kamola, 2019-06-07 Following World War II the American government and philanthropic foundations fundamentally remade American universities into sites for producing knowledge about the world as a collection of distinct nation states As neoliberal reforms took hold in the 1980s visions of the world made popular within area studies and international studies found themselves challenged by ideas and educational policies that originated in business schools and international financial institutions Academics within these institutions reimagined the world instead as a single global market and higher education as a commodity to be bought and sold By the 1990s American universities embraced this language of globalization and globalization eventually became the organizing logic of higher education In Making the World Global Isaac A Kamola examines how the relationships among universities the American state philanthropic organizations and international financial institutions created the conditions that made it possible to imagine the world as global Examining the Center for International Studies Harvard Business School the World Bank the Social Science Research Council and NYU Kamola demonstrates that how we imagine the world is always symptomatic of the material relations within which knowledge is produced Converting Witness David W. Congdon, John G. Flett, 2019-06-05 Building on the work and legacy of Darrell L. Guder Converting Witness: The Future of Christian Mission in the New Millennium explores key questions and new possibilities in missiology in light of the world Christian context. The conversation around missional theology and the missional church has examined the gap between theology and mission with the intent of fostering renewal within North American Christianity. But this can only fully occur in relation to the reality of world Christianities and the framing significance of global cultural diversity. Many of the classic categories and methods such as church planting, catholicity, and even the term world Christianity itself are in need of fresh examination and thoughtful analysis. The contributors to this volume address a range of important missiological topics including globalization, interfaith dialogue, integral mission, intercultural hermeneutics, and church practices.

The Gospel According to the Simpsons Samuel F. Parvin, Mark I. Pinsky, 2009-01-01 Introducing a complete revision of the study guide to the best-selling book The Gospel according to The Simpsons, complete with new studies on episodes of The Simpsons as well as studies for discussing other popular animated comedies such as Family Guy, King of the Hill, and Futurama. This new edition features a session plan for a green retreat based on The Simpsons feature film and the environmental film An Inconvenient Truth as well as a listing of DVD availability for each episode with cross references to the relevant chapters in the book.

Multiplying Leaders in Intercultural Contexts Evelyn Hibbert, Richard Hibbert, 2023-01-31 Develop Leaders in Culturally Relevant Ways. Often church planters, disciplers, and pastors struggle to identify grassroots leaders and develop them in their context. As leaders who want to develop other leaders, our task is to come alongside these leaders and learn and grow together with them. Multiplying Leaders in Intercultural Contexts focuses on how to develop grassroots Christian leaders across cultures. These often unrecognized leaders mostly lead small groups at the growing edges of the church. They are ordinary people who faithfully share Christ amid the demands of daily life. Another focus of the book is shaping the character of developers as they humbly walk beside leaders in the leaders' community. Using the four C's of Christian leadership: Community, Character, Clarity, and Care, the authors weave together research, experience, and practical application to show how these characteristics are expressed across different cultures. The book then discusses five principles illustrated in common settings for an intentional process that develops leaders and their communities collectively. Take the next step now in developing yourself and others in the task of leading Jesus's church wherever that might be.
