Echoes from the French poets: an anthology by H. Curwen French poets, 1870 Echoes from the French Poets, 1870 University of Colorado Semicentennial Series, 1877-1927, 1927 Folk-taxonomies in Early English Earl R. Anderson, 2003 A folk taxonomy is a semantic field that represents the particular way in which a language imposes structure and order upon the myriad impressions of human experience and perception Thus for example the experience of color in modern English is structured around an inventory of twelve basic color terms but languages vary in the number of basic color terms used from thirteen or fourteen terms to as few as two or three Anthropological linguists have been interested in the comparative study of folk taxonomies across contemporary languages and in their studies they have sometimes proposed evolutionary models for the development and elaboration of these taxonomies The evolutionary models have implications for historical linguistics but there have been very few studies of the historical development of a folk taxonomy within a language or within a language family Folk Taxonomies in Early English undertakes this task for English and to some extent for the Germanic and Indo European language families The semantic fields studied are basic color terms seasons of the year geometric shapes the five senses the folk psychology of mind and soul and basic plant and animal life forms Anderson's emphasis is on folk taxonomies in Old and Middle English and also on the implications of semantic analysis for our reading of early English literary texts High-Latitude Bioerosion: The Kosterfjord Experiment Max Wisshak, 2006-08-09 Traces of the action of mechanical and chemical boring scraping or crushing organisms on hard substrates appear in fossil carbonates as old as the Precambrian providing valuable palaeoenvironmental indicators Bioerosion has been extensively studied in tropical seas but data from cold temperate to polar settings remain sparse This book presents an experimental study into the pace of carbonate degradation and the chronology of boring community development along a bathymetric gradient in high latitude settings The Eel Frederick W. Tesch, Ray J. White, 2008-04-15 A strong demand for an English version of the third German Edition of this extremely important book paved the way for this excellent new translation which contains much new information from over 500 publications not covered by the previous English language edition The Eel is the standard work on the species with chapters in the book covering body structure and functions developmental stages and distribution of the eel species post larval ecology and behaviour harvest and environmental relationships fishing methods eel culture diseases parasites and bodily damage the world trade in eels and eel processing Contributions are included from several world authorities including new information concerning genetic diversity in eel populations and the consequences for their management Written by Friedrich Wilhelm Tesch one of the foremost world authorities on eels and carefully edited by Professor Thorpe well known for his work in fish biology writing and editing The Eel is an essential purchase for all those working with the species including fish biologists physiologists and ecologists aquatic and environmental scientists fisheries managers and fish farm personnel Copies of this landmark publication should be available in the libraries of all research establishments and universities where these subjects are studied or taught The Fisheries Society of the British Isles provided generous financial support enabling the translation and publication of this book Written by F W Tesch Translated from the German Edition by R J White Edited by J E Thorpe Love Songs of France
