The Foie Gras Wars Mark Caro, 2009-03-10 In announcing that he had stopped serving the fattened livers of force fed ducks and geese at his world renowned restaurant influential chef Charlie Trotter heaved a grenade into a simmering food fight and the Foie Gras Wars erupted He said his morally minded menu revision was meant merely to raise consciousness but what was he thinking when he also suggested to Chicago Tribune reporter Mark Caro that a rival four star chef's liver be eaten as a little treat The reaction to Caro's subsequent front page story was explosive as Trotter's sizable hometown moved to ban the ancient delicacy known as foie gras while an international array of activists farmers chefs and politicians clashed forcefully and sometimes violently over whether fattening birds for the sake of scrumptious livers amounts to ethical agriculture or torture Take a dish with a funny French name add ducks top it all off with celebrity chefs eating each other's livers and that's entertainment Caro writes Yet as absurd as battling over bloated waterfowl organs might seem the controversy struck a serious chord even among those who had never tasted the stuff Reporting from the front lines of this passionate dining debate Caro explores the questions we too often avoid What is an acceptable amount of suffering for an animal that winds up on our plate Is a duck that lives comfortably for twelve weeks before enduring a few weeks of periodic force feedings worse off than a supermarket broiler chicken that never sees the light of day over its six to seven weeks on earth Why is the animal rights movement picking on such a rarefied dish when so many more chickens pigs and cows are being processed on factory farms Then again how could the treatment of other animals possibly justify the practice of feeding a duck through a metal tube down its throat In his relentless yet good humored pursuit of clarity Caro takes us to the streets where activists use bullhorns spray paint Superglue and or lawsuits as their weapons the government chambers where politicians weigh the ducks interests against their own the restaurants and outlaw dining clubs where haute cuisine preparations coexist with Foie lipops and the U S and French farms whose operators maintain that they are honoring tradition not abusing animals Can foie gras survive after 5 000 years Are we on the verge of a more enlightened era of eating Can both answers be yes Our appetites hang in the balance

Religion and Film S. Brent Plate,2017-09-05 Religion and cinema share a capacity for world making ritualizing mythologizing and creating sacred time and space Through cinematography mise en sc ne editing and other production activities film takes the world out there and refashions it Religion achieves similar ends by setting apart particular objects and periods of time telling stories and gathering people together for communal actions and concentrated focus The result of both cinema and religious practice is a re created world a world of fantasy a world of ideology a world we long to live in or a world we wish to avoid at all costs Religion and Film introduces readers to both religious studies and film studies by focusing on the formal similarities between cinema and religious practices and on the ways they each re create the world Explorations of film show how the cinematic experience relies on similar aesthetic devices on which religious rituals have long relied sight sound the taste of food the body and communal experience Meanwhile a deeper understanding of the aesthetic nature of religious rituals can alter our understanding of film production Utilizing terminology and theoretical insights from the study of religion as well as the study of film Religion and Film shows that by paying attention to the ways films are constructed we can shed new light on the ways religious myths and rituals are constructed and vice versa This thoroughly revised and expanded new edition is designed to appeal to the needs of courses in religion as well as film departments In addition to two new chapters this edition has been restructured into three distinct sections that offer students and instructors theories and methods for thinking about cinema in ways that more fully connect film studies with religious studies
