

Love and beauty in Symposium

The speech of Diotima

- Aristophanes says
  - that people don't grasp the power of love because if they did then they would be building towers for him
  - Love cures and stands by us in times of need
  - There were 3 kinds of beings in the beginning
    - Male, female, and androgynous ( both male and female)
  - The shape of humans was completely round, they had 8 limbs, two faces
    - They walked upright
    - Basically like siamese twins cuz zeus cut them in half to make man and women so they also had both reproductive organs as well
  - The males was the offspring of the sun and the female of the earth and the one that combined both genders was of the moon
  - When Zeus cut them in half he told apollo to heal them and used the belly button as reminder of what happened when they went a riot
  - They longed for their other half and just kept dying so zeus put their genitals on the outside and reproductive organs inside
  - He said sometimes the half was a women and sometimes it was a man
    - Lgbtq?
    - Talks about man and man
  - Love is innate and calls back the halves of our original nature together and tries to make one out of two
  - The idea of a soul mate but is more physical
    - If a woman is separated from a woman she will look for only women
  - An interesting perspective of boys lying with men being brave and bold
  - When you meet your other half it is a sense of belonging to one another
  - Love is the name for our pursuit of wholeness
- Aristophanes idea makes sense cuz when people's husbands or significant others die they feel as though they are missing a piece of themselves but what about someone who has more than one great love, how do you explain that or when someone unconditionally loves someone but the other person does not feel the same way
- Win the favor of young men?
  - What is the obsession with young men even socrates kept saying he has a soft spot for beautiful boys
  - The emphasis on the word young
