Speeches Of Benjamin Harrison:

Speeches of Benjamin Harrison, Twenty-third President of the United States Benjamin Harrison, 1890 Speeches of Benjamin Harrison, Twenty-third President of the United States Benjamin Harrison, 2021-05-19 In Speeches of Benjamin Harrison Twenty third President of the United States readers are presented with a comprehensive compilation of Harrison s oratory highlighting his presidency from 1889 to 1893 The work captures the eloquence and rhetorical craft of Harrison showcasing his clear articulation of key issues including foreign policy economic reform and civil rights Set against the backdrop of an increasingly complex and industrialized America the speeches reflect the political tensions and aspirations of the Gilded Age providing insight into Harrison s vision for the nation amidst burgeoning national and international challenges Benjamin Harrison born into a politically active family was profoundly influenced by the social and economic transformations of his era A distinguished lawyer and politician he served as a Union general in the Civil War before ascending to the presidency His experiences both personal and political informed his commitment to issues such as veteran s rights and economic modernization making his speeches particularly relevant for understanding the dynamics of late 19th century America This collection is indispensable for scholars students and anyone interested in American history and political discourse Harrison s speeches not only serve as a reflection of his presidency but also resonate with contemporary readers facing similar national dilemmas Engaging with this volume offers a unique glimpse into the rhetoric that shaped American policy during a pivotal era Speeches of Benjamin Harrison Charles Hedges, 2020-08-02

Reproduction of the original Speeches of Benjamin Harrison by Charles Hedges Speeches of Benjamin Harrison, twenty-third President of the United States; a complete collection of his public addresses from February 1888, to February, 1892 ... Harrison, Benjamin, 1892-01-01 Speeches of Benjamin Harrison Benjamin Harrison, Ian Randal Strock, Charles Hedges, 2014-08-20 In 1888 Benjamin Harrison campaigned for the Presidency in the manner common for candidates of his era he stayed at home in Indianapolis and spoke to visiting delegations In 1889 he traveled to Washington to take up residency in the White House and made a few brief trips out of town In 1890 he undertook a train journey lasting more than a week and covering nearly 2 700 miles making stops and speeches in seven states But in 1891 he did something no other President had done to that point a transcontinental train journey lasting a month and covering more than 9 200 miles On this voyage he visited and made speeches in nearly 200 municipalities in no fewer than 18 states and three territories which would soon join the union Later that year he followed it up with a two week 1 400 mile journey through New York and Vermont with another 30 stops and speeches This volume originally compiled by Charles Hedges in 1892 is a complete collection of Harrison s addresses from February 1888 to February 1892 in chronological order including all his campaign speeches several important letter and the numerous speeches delivered during his tours It also includes extracts from his messages to Congress Unknowingly contrasting his subject with the politicians of today Hedges writes in his

introduction it is not the purpose of this book to present a few selections of oratory laboriously prepared and polished or occasional flashes of brilliant thought From such efforts prepared perhaps after days of study and repeated revision one can form but an imperfect idea of their author Such a compilation might show the highest conceptions of the man and evidence a wide range of thought and a surpassing grandeur of expression but it would be but a poor mirror of the man himself in his daily life Instead he wrote the people deserve to observe the character of their public servants to come into closest touch with their daily thoughts and to know them as they are not when prepared for special occasions but day after day and all the time The vast majority of the speeches presented here were delivered during the presidential campaign of 1888 often four or five in a day to visiting delegations of citizens representing every occupation and interest and during his tours of 1890 and 1891 when he often spoke eight or ten times a day from the platform of his train car He goes on to laud Harrison s efforts noting that among other reasons the speeches are notable in the fact that while delivered during the excitement of a political campaign and in the hurry of wayside pauses in a journey by railroad they contain not one carelessly spoken word that can detract from their dignity or by any possible distortion of language be turned against their author by his political opponents With no opportunity for elaborately studied phrases he did not utter a word that could be sneered at as weak or commonplace And also that no thought of sameness or repetition is ever suggested One marvels at his versatility in adapting himself to every occasion whether he was addressing a delegation of miners of comrades in war or of children from public schools This modern edition is newly typeset and accompanied by maps detailing Harrison s journeys prepared specifically for this volume Speeches of Benjamin Harrison, twenty-third president of the U.S. Benjamin Harrison,1892

Speeches of Benjamin Harrison, Twenty-Third President of the United States Charles Hedges,2015-06-29 Excerpt from Speeches of Benjamin Harrison Twenty Third President of the United States A Complete Collection of His Public Addresses From February 1888 to February 1892 It is not the purpose of this book to present a few selections of oratory laboriously prepared and polished or occasional Hashes of brilliant thought From such efforts prepared perhaps after days of study and repeated revision one can form but an imperfect idea of their author Such a compilation might show the highest conceptions of tho man and evidence a wide range of thought and a surpassing grandeur of expression but it would be but a poor mirror of the man himself in his daily life It is due to the people that the largest opportunity be given them to observe the character of their public servants to come into closest touch with their daily thoughts and to know them as they are not when prepared for special occasions hut day after day and all the time It is with this view that this collection of the speeches of President Harrison is offered to tho public It is a series of instantaneous photographs that have caught him unawares The studied pose is wanting but the pictures are true to life There are included the letter of acceptance the inaugural address the letter to the commercial congress extracts from his last annual message to Congress his patriotic message on the Chilian affair and a few carefully prepared speeches among them his notable addresses at the banquet of the Michigan Club February 22 1888 and before the Marquette Club at Chicago March 20 the same year also his celebrated speech at Galveston in April last About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Speeches of Benjamin Harrison Benjamin Harrison,1971 Speeches of Benjamin Harrison, Twenty-third President of the United States United States.
