"If men could learn from history, what lessons it might teach us! But passion and party blind our eyes, and the light which experience gives is a lantern on the stern, which shines only on the waves behind us!"

Samuel Taylor Coleridge (1772-1834).

Author's Note

The author of this work wishes to make it known that the dates, events, and explanations contained herein are subject to the fallibility of the sources (and the author) but that to the best of his ability he has produced what evidence and content would suggest to be true and has, especially in the more recent history of the past two centuries, tried to take an objective and reasoned approach rather than following the views of popularity or "political correctness" of any kind. As to this work, however, it must be stated that it is the view of the author and not necessarily the view of any other person or organization. Copyright, Darren Andrews, 2003.
